Worst U.S. Air Tragedy Since '71

Latest Plane Toll Mounts to 109

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Eastern Airlines 727 jet from New Orleans, turning toward Runway 22L at Kennedy International Airport, cruised through heavy rain and lightning. It seemed like a normal landing despite the weather.

Suddenly, several witnesses said later, bolts of lightning appeared to hit the heavily loaded blue and white plane. A quarter-mile from the runway, it snapped a series of 35-foot light towers.

The aircraft somersaulted, hit the ground with a thunderous explosion and a fireball that flashed up to 600 feet in the gray sky, and then broke up across a marshy field and a highway.

There were 123 men, women and children aboard EAL Flight 66. Only 14 survived the crash Tuesday afternoon. Two flight attendants miraculously escaped serious injury and 12 passengers were in critical condition today.

The toll of 109 dead made this the worst crash of a single plane in the United States since a 1971 disaster in Alaska that killed 111. History's worst air tragedy killed 345 persons aboard a Turkish plane near Paris last year.

George Van Epps, a supervisor for the National Transportation Safety Board, said the veteran pilot, Capt. John W. Kleven, never reported any trouble before the plane crashed.

A few hundred yards from the end of its nonstop 1,200-mile, 181-minute trip from Louisiana, the three-engine jet wound up as a trail of smoking debris and shattered bodies stretched in a line pointing at Runway 22L. White shrouds covered a long row of victims thrown onto the sodden ground.

Others asphyxiated by the inferno that consumed the fuselage were left strapped into their overturned seats while rescue workers searched for survivors.

Several witnesses reported they saw lightning strike the plane before it smashed to the ground in a thunderous roar.

Van Epps said a lightning bolt was a possible cause of the disaster, but he said he could not speculate on the exact reason the jet crashed until the 727's "black box" flight recorder and taped records of the pilot's last exchanges with air traffic controllers are studied.

A 10-man NTSB "go team" sent in from Washington began an immediate investigation today.

"It was raining very hard at the time," said gas station mechanic Neil Rairden, 23, who was watching the plane as it approached the runway at 4:06 p.m. "All of a sudden there was lightning. I looked up and all I saw was smoke and flames and no plane."

"I said 'Holy God!' I knew that plane had gotten hit by lightning," Rairden said. "It just exploded and shattered."

Paul Moran, an off-duty policeman, said, "I saw (lightning) hit the plane. It hit the tail while the plane was still in the air."

A doctor who spoke with two of the survivors at a hospital said "they remember the plane went out of control and it veered. After that, all they remember is they were in the hospital."

"I saw this big flash of fire like the atomic bomb going off," said Moe Friedman, an airport employee who was driving along Rockaway Boulevard moments before the jet crashed. He said the flames leaped 500 to 600 feet.

Other people in the area mistook the sound of the crash for a thunderclap.

Although there was heavy traffic in the area at the time, no motorists were hit. A diner waitress said two middle-aged couples who rushed into the cafe "said they were the last car to get through before the plane hit. They said they saw it burning in the air ... They were upset — screaming, yelling, crying."

Mary Mooney, 28, and Robert Hoefler, 29, two of the flight attendants, walked away from the wreckage. They were in fair condition.

The other survivors, all in critical condition, were severely burned. They suffered multiple fractures and were numbed by shock.

The dead included the Right Rev. Iveson B. Noland, the Episcopal bishop of New Orleans, and Wendell Ladner, the New York Nets basketball player.

Also killed were Edgar Bright Sr., a prominent New Orleans investment banker, and most of a group of 19 Norwegian seamen enroute home for a vacation.

Survivors 'Numbed' by Shock of Tragedy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twelve of the 14 survivors of the Eastern Airlines crash were in critical condition today.

Most of the survivors were numbed by the shock of the tragedy, unable to speak. Identification was difficult in some cases because the fire that engulfed the jet burned off the victims' clothing.

A stewardess and steward aboard the flight from New Orleans who walked away from the crash were hospitalized in fair condition.

Dr. Bernard Gussoff, chairman of medicine at Jamaica Hospital, where eight passengers were being treated for burns, multiple fractures and shock, said, "One or two are in immediate and imminent danger because of possible internal bleeding." However, he added, "We have every reason to believe most of these people will survive."

Two men who suffered open head wounds in the crash died Tuesday night in the hospital.

Four persons with serious burns were transferred to a special burn treatment center at Jacobi Hospital. Teams of up to four doctors were assigned to attend each of the crash victims.

Among the survivors were Joseph Dispenza, of Baton Rouge, La., and his daughters Sandy, 9, and Tina, 7. The children, described as being burned over more than 50 percent of their bodies, were in critical condition. A hospital spokesman said early today the father was "very poor."

Dispenza's wife died in the crash. The fourth patient in Jacobi Hospital's burn treatment center was identified as Gregory Georziakis.

Ajom Luftaas, 39, a Norwegian, and a Greek man for whom a tentative surname of Stratos or Stratis was given were transferred to Harlem Hospital early today for more concentrated treatment for their burns. Both were in critical condition.

Six patients remained at Jamaica Hospital, where most of the initial survivors were taken. They included:

Arthur Marchesi, 39, New York City

John Cassata

Norman Van Winkle, 37, Lake Charles, La.

Karl Engenes, 19, Boulden, Norway

Also, two unidentified men, one of whom was described as "apparently Norwegian." The second was described only as young and dark haired.

The two flight attendants — Mary Mooney, 28, and Robert Hoefler, 29, both of New York — were being treated at the South Shore Division of Long Island Jewish Hospital.

City Girl Dies In Rte. 32 Crash

TOWN OF ROSENDALE

A 19-year-old Kingston girl died and four other city youths were injured when the convertible in which they were riding flipped over on Route 32 late Tuesday night, hurling all five from the car.

Jennifer Schultz of 167 Clinton Avenue, a passenger in the car, died at the Benedictine Hospital shortly after 6 a.m. today, some seven hours after the spectacular crash.

The driver of the car, 18-year-old Albert G. Freer Jr. of 56 Franklin Street, was charged by Hurley State Police with driving while intoxicated.

Two ambulance services, Doctors Ambulance and Don's Ambulance, had to be called to the scene to transport the victims to area hospitals.

Freer, Miss Schultz and George Glass, 17, of 14 Center Street, were all taken to the Benedictine Hospital. Glass was listed in poor condition in the intensive care unit; Freer was listed in fair condition.

Taken to Kingston Hospital were Donald Glass Jr., 18, of 12 Center Street and Kirby Amell, 17, of 101 Pine Grove Avenue. Glass was treated and released; Amell was admitted and was listed in satisfactory condition.

State Police said Freer lost control of the car on a curve. The convertible ran off the road, spun around and flipped over, ejecting the five passengers.

Meanwhile, in another roll-over crash, seven persons escaped serious injury Tuesday afternoon in the Town of Saugerties. Town police said the driver, Stanley Kogut Jr., 21, of Route 32, Saugerties, lost control of his car on Fish Creek Road in High Woods and rolled it over twice. Kogut and one of six passengers, Michael Uvino, 19, were treated and released at Kingston Hospital following the 3:20 p.m. crash. No summonses were issued.

In another one-car crash Tuesday afternoon, the driver, Mary Alice Wittholt, 22, of Brabant Road, Kingston and passenger Linda Van Demark, 32, of Ohayo Mountain Road, Woodstock were hospitalized after the auto in which they were riding ran off a private driveway off Hurley Mountain Road at about 2:30 p.m. Both were listed in satisfactory condition at Kingston Hospital today. Full details of the crash were not available.

JOHN ROSELLI

Roselli Admits It to Anderson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mafia figure John Roselli told Congress that he worked with the CIA in the early 1960s on six separate attempts to either poison or shoot Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, columnist Jack Anderson reported today.

Anderson said in a televised commentary (on ABC's AM America) that he interviewed Roselli Tuesday after the 69-year-old underworld operative testified for more than two hours in a closed session of the Senate intelligence committee, which is probing the Central Intelligence Agency.

Anderson said that Roselli promised him the interview 4½ years ago when Anderson revealed in his newspaper column that the CIA had recruited Roselli and Chicago crime boss Sam Giancana to mastermind Castro's assassination.

According to Anderson, Roselli said Tuesday that Giancana, who was shot to death at his home Thursday night, was not directly involved in the assassination plot.

"He knew about it. He even suggested a Cuban contact, nothing more," Anderson said.

Roselli told Anderson that he was first contacted about participating in a Castro murder plot in 1960 in Los Angeles by Robert Maheu, a former top aide to billionaire Howard Hughes.

Roselli met again with Maheu in New York City on Sept. 14, 1960 and the serious planning began, Anderson said.

Roselli named two CIA officials, James O'Connell and William Harvey, as the supervisors of the project. Harvey was scheduled to be interviewed today by the Senate committee.

Anderson said Roselli told him he flew to Miami to recruit an "assassination squad."

He said the first attempt involved an effort to poison

Castro with pellets supplied by the CIA. Roselli said the pellets were delivered to the plotters hotel room by Maheu.

"Maheu dramatically opened his brief case, revealing $10,000 in cash and the fatal pellets. The money was distributed to the Cuban plotter," Anderson said Roselli told him.

Conservatives Tab One of Their Own

By Hugh Reynolds

PORT EWEN

County Clerk Albert Spada didn't expect to get the Conservative nomination last night at the town hall. He would have been satisfied to prevent a Conservative swing to his Democratic opponent, Lewis C. Kirschner.

Spada says he's satisfied. Last night, 41 Conservative committeepersons convened and nominated a Conservative, William Hegeman of Ellenville as their candidate for county clerk on the second ballot.

Hegeman told the Freeman today that his decision to seek his party's nomination was "not sudden. I've been thinking about this a long time," although County Conservative Chairman William Jackson seemed somewhat surprised. "Personally I didn't know until last night (Tuesday night) that he wanted to go," Jackson told the Freeman.

In any event, the Conservatives went for their "favorite son" over the Democratic and Republican hopefuls. "We have an unwritten law that if a Conservative wants to run he is given preference over a member of any other party," Jackson said.

That preference wasn't evident on the first ballot as Kirschner garnered 15 votes to Hegeman's nine. Spada finished third and dropped out with seven.

The second ballot had Hegeman beating Kirschner by a 22-19 spread.

"I'm disappointed but not surprised," Kirschner told the Freeman today. "I think it will make me work harder. It shows that some Conservatives are still on my side. I consider myself a Conservative Democrat and I intend to remain that way." Kirschner said he would refuse the Liberal nomination if it were offered.

"The worst thing that could have happened was for Spada to win," Kirschner said.

Lake Kirschner, Spada expressed little surprise at the results of the convention. "I've never had their endorsement before and I didn't expect it this time," he said. "I'm very happy they're running their own candidate."

Hegeman says he's in this race to stay unlike last year when he announced as the Conservative candidate for sheriff and then withdrew. That nomination eventually went to the Republican nominee Thomas F. Mayone. Hegeman is currently employed as a deputy sheriff in charge of the Ellenville station. Kirschner supported Mayone for sheriff.

The rest of the Conservative convention was fairly routine with the party throwing its support to incumbent Republicans William S. Keyser for coroner and Arthur Davis for surrogate judge.

The Conservatives nominated all the Republican candidates for legislator from District Three (Saugerties), including Alice Tipp and incumbents Charles Scala Jr., C. Freeman Lasher and Clifford W. Snyder; District One (Wawarsing, Denning and Hardenburgh) including Frank R. Spada, John F. Geary and incumbent Robert H. Kuhlman; District Six (Esopus and Rosendale) nominated GOP candidate Vernon Kelly and two Conservatives, Al Grassi and Attilio Contini and in the City of Kingston they split their endorsements going for Larry Kitchart, a Democrat, and Republicans Melvin Mones, John Machione, Frank Stauble and Emma Appria.

Conservative committeemen in the other legislative districts have not met to nominate their candidates for legislature, according to Party Chairman Jackson.

$100,000 Claim in New Paltz

NEW PALTZ A notice of claim has been filed against the Town of New Paltz asking for $100,000 on behalf of a migrant farm worker who claims to have been falsely arrested and assaulted by New Paltz Police last month.

The claim notice filed on behalf of Roy Green, 28, contends that he was "illegally arrested, illegally detained by the New Paltz Police, assaulted by certain unknown New Paltz Town police officers during the course of his detention and had certain false charges placed against him also by the New Paltz Police Department resulting in his incarceration in the Ulster County Jail until May 30."

Charging that Green was physically assaulted by "unknown officers" at about 11:30 p.m., May 23, the claim asks for $100,000 in damages for injuries, including contusions and lacerations of the face, head and shoulders and a "possible" fractured finger and for false arrest and/or imprisonment.

Green is represented by attorney Joshua Koplovitz of Woodstock, who declined comment on the case.

The claim notice was filed last week and has been turned over to the New Paltz Town attorney.

According to New Paltz Police Chief Charles A.

Bogdanowicz, police records show Green was arrested at about 2 a.m. May 24 on charges of disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, and public intoxication and was jailed in lieu of bail until May 30 when he reappeared before Town Justice Rexford Schneider and was released, apparently pending further court action.

According to unofficial sources, however, Green was allegedly picked up by police for questioning with two companions in connection with a rape case. Read his constitutional rights, Green refused to talk before speaking with a lawyer, the source said, and was allegedly struck by officers while handcuffed, was later arrested on the previously mentioned charges and was jailed.

Oddly enough, however, according to Ulster County Jail officials, there is no record of Roy Green being held there from May 23 or 24 until May 30 either under that name or under the names John Doe or George Henderson, which names New Paltz Police said were also used when he was booked. Green was, however, in jail from May 3 through May 5 on an attempted burglary charge, according to jail officials.

Nevertheless, court records indicate that Green was jailed for a week, according to First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh. The DA's office, not previously aware of the allegations against the New Paltz police, is now investigating the charges.

Dutchess Charges Dropped

ALBANY Two Ulster County men arrested in April in Dutchess County on felony charges have had the charges against them dismissed and have filed a notice of intention to file a claim against New York State, the state police and Trooper Richard Hart and BCI Investigator "John Colby" of the Rhinebeck State Police for false arrest and imprisonment.

The notice of intention (a prelude to a law suit) was filed in the State Court of Claims on behalf of John Lapoce of Shokan and Frank Izzo of harder Road, Woodstock.

The two men were arrested on April 12 on felony charges of third degree grand larceny for allegedly stealing old railroad ties from along Penn Central tracks in Rhinebeck. Izzo was also charged with possession of a loaded pistol.

The charges have since been dismissed in Rhinebeck Town Court on the motion of Assistant District Attorney Stephen L. Greller, who explained that both men had a permit to take the railroad ties and that Izzo had a permit to carry a gun.

The notice of intention to file a claim does not set forth a monetary figure for the apparently impending claim.

The notice of intention specifically names "Richard Hart and 'John' Colby, first name fictitious" as defendants. There is, however, according to Rhinebeck State Police, no Inv. Colby who works there; there is working at the Rhinebeck State Police an Inv. Richard Cobey.

Housing Bill Veto Should Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats, themselves divided, concede they had almost no chance of overriding President Ford's veto of a $1.35 billion housing bill, an anti-recession measure with middleclass appeal.

In advance of today's votes, Democratic strategists said the effort would fall about 32 votes short of the required two-thirds majority.

Speaker Carl Albert, stung by criticism from disenchanted freshmen, worked hard to produce a victory. He made about 100 telephone calls in an effort to switch votes.

Recipients of the calls said he was "tough."

But some Democrats were among the bill's severest critics. Rep. Thomas Ludlow Ashley, D-Ohio, a member of the House Banking Committee which handles housing legislation, said Senate-added amendments made the measure a "turkey" which would not fly or even waddle.

Ford, in vetoing the measure Tuesday, cited the $1 billion which he said the bill would add to a projected deficit of $60 billion to $80 billion.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said Congress should override the veto to end what he called "the tyranny of government by veto."

Ford also announced the release of $2 billion in mortgage purchase authority by the Government National Mortgage Association, which buys mortgages from savings and loan associations, permitting them to make new mortgage commitments.

Ford asked Congress to increase GNMA's authority by an additional $7.75 billion. He said this would be a far more effective way of stimulating activity in a housing industry suffering depression-level unemployment of 20 to 40 percent.

The vetoed bill would have produced housing demand by reducing mortgage costs through interest subsidies. It offered purchasers of new or existing homes a choice of $1,000 in cash, a 7 percent subsidized mortgage or a 6 percent mortgage rising to the going market rate over six years.

The measure also would have offered loans of $250 a month for 24 months to unemployed homeowners who had received foreclosure notices.

Democrats claimed the bill would have led to the construction of 400,000 houses and work for 800,000 jobless workers.

The veto brought to 33 the number by Ford in his 10 months in the White House — exceeding the five-year records of Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon.

Ford Explains Veto

President Ford vetoed the $1.35 billion middle-income housing bill Tuesday in Washington, D. C., on grounds it would add $1 billion to the federal debt. Housing Secretary Carla Hills waits to brief newsmen at the White House. (UPI)

Ford Cites 'GOP Comeback'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says the Republican Party has made "one of the most amazing comebacks" since he took office during America's worst political scandal.

Ford scheduled a national television and radio news conference for 5 p.m. EDT in the White House Rose Garden.

He summoned two dozen members of Congress to the White House to discuss his proposals "to lift the heavy hand" of government control from free enterprise.

Ford discussed the GOP at a White House reception for big Republican Party contributors in the East Room Tuesday night. He said they had "kept the party alive" during its "trials and tribulations," but he did not directly mention the Watergate scandal or the forced resignation of his predecessor, Richard Nixon.

Instead, he said the difficulties which the party overcame were 10 to 12 percent inflation and a "serious recession."

Ford said the "experts tell us we've bottomed out on the recession and that inflation has been cut in half."

"We're on the right path," he said.

"You kept the Republican Party from becoming an endangered species," Ford told the party faithful.

He said that "in the last nine or ten months" strides had been made and "we can now say the Republican party has made one of the most amazing comebacks in the shortest period of time I have seen or read about."

The President said he once was "fearful and apprehensive" the Democratic majority in Congress would be in control, but he said the Republicans are "unified and have been able to stem the tide of some unsound legislation."

Tensions Increase in Korea

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korea alerted its armed forces today on the 25th anniversary of the outbreak of the Korean War. North Korea said there is "a grave danger of war breaking out at any moment."

A South Korean defense spokesman said the nation's 625,000-member armed forces went on "special alert" in observance of the anniversary.

South Korea also canceled all leaves for its 600,000 government workers and ordered 20 percent of the employees to report for special duty during the day.

North Korea's Central News Agency, in a broadcast monitored today in Tokyo, accused the United States and South Korea of trying "to whip up a war atmosphere" on the divided peninsula.

"Owing to this, a grave danger of war breaking out at any moment has been created in Korea," the news agency said.

The government of North Vietnamese Premier Kim IlSung has stepped up hostile rhetoric against the South in recent months.

The government of South Korean President Park Chung-Hee has reported increased Communist infiltration tunnels under the demarcation line.

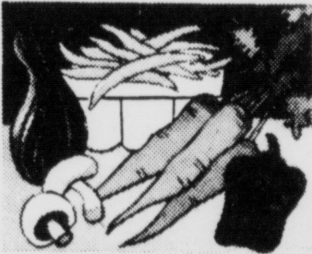

The North has 467,000 men under arms and 598 combat aircraft. The South has reportedly been mobilizing its 625,000-man armed forces, backed by 42,000 U.S. troops.

South Korea has also been trying to organize a 3.5 million-member Civil Defense Corps made up of men between the ages of 17 and 50 and women volunteers.

The United States is tied to South Korea by treaty. If the North invades, Washington is bound to respond by constitutional means — a congressional declaration of war.

Senior Citizens Group Opposes Rec Purchase

HURLEY
A group of senior citizens in Hurley does not want the town to purchase the Oehler property for recreation because of cost.

Spokesmen Monday night gave a list of reasons for this stand at the Hurley Town Board meeting, including the initial cost, a reported $97,500; the size of the property as being too large; the swimming pool being inadequate for the town; and the alleged high maintenance costs including salaries for "several full-time custodians," according to Town Clerk Patricia Glass.

A letter from William Oehler, owner of the resort, to the board Monday night stated that all particulars on the offer would be forwarded to the board before its July 28 meeting. The board had previously asked him for a breakdown on all land and improvements. The resort has been operating under the name Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

The board also heard a report from engineers Brimmer and Larios on about 25 basement elevations of homes in the flood plain. The town has been accepted into the National Flood Program, effective June 20, and those in flood plains are eligible to buy insurance.

- Received a letter from the State Department of Transportation approving a 35 mile-per-hour zone on Old Route 209 at Riverside Park in Hurley.

- Was informed of the summer bus schedule for recreation programs, available in West Hurley from Doris Blatten and in Hurley from Frank Ebelheiser.

- Reviewed the draft of a contract with the Ulster County SPCA for removal and keeping of dogs. Affirmative action is expected.

- Approved the appointment of Holly Glass, daughter of the clerk, as deputy clerk for a two-week period this summer while her mother is on vacation. The dates have not yet been determined.

- Noted that Supervisor Raymond "Jake" Crosswell will vacation July 8-14, with deputy supervisor George Schroeder to act in his behalf.

- Recognized the receipt of awards by seven town constables upon completion of a training program at Ulster County Community College. They are John Parker, Steven Hoyer, William Crosby, Richard Judson, Philip Sinagra, Henry Thomas, and William Hutton.

- Heard a request for a safety sign at the intersection of Windsor Drive and Ridgewood Avenue, to be investigated.

- Resolved to pay election inspectors for 16 hours work instead of 15, as they generally work about 18, according to the town clerk.

- Resolved to release 50 percent of the funds in escrow for roadwork at Leewood Knolls, as that percentage of the work has been completed.

- Opened bids for an addition to the town garage on Dug Hill Road, with a special meeting set for July 14 to review them. There were ten bids received, some from out of the area, indicating the widespread search for construction jobs.

- Heard a request for signs at the intersection of Route 375 and Holly Hills Drive, West Hurley, indicating that a new church has opened and driving caution is advised.

- Listened to highway superintendent Peter Naccarato explain that the town fleet of vehicles will be painted school bus yellow with town insignia when a practical time is found.

GOV. CAREY MAKES POINT
(UPI)

Carey Demands Probe By Justice Department

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey, maintaining his innocence, has asked the U.S. Justice Department to investigate reports he applied pressure to complete an alleged scheme that netted millions for his brother and an Alabama oilman.

Carey Tuesday said he asked U.S. Attorney General Edward Levi for "the fullest investigation" into reports that Carey, as a congressman, applied political influence on the Federal Energy Office and the Commerce Department.

"The seriousness of these allegations causes me to formally request ... that the Department of Justice undertake an investigation of this matter," Carey said in a letter.

Frank Zarb, the federal energy administrator, already has ordered an FEA investigation. He said in Washington that the scheme had been opposed by his agency "on moral grounds."

Published reports have alleged that Carey applied pressure to grant three export licenses which were used to circumvent federal price controls on oil during last year's Arab embargo.

Reportedly, the chief beneficiaries of the alleged scheme were Edward Carey, the governor's brother, and Bart Chamberlain, an Alabama oilman. It has been alleged that Chamberlain netted more than $8 million in profits while the governor's brother gained about $4 million in windfall profits.

Edward Carey was the main contributor to Gov. Carey's gubernatorial race.

The governor, who served as a congressman for 14 years, has labeled the reports "lies."

"I have publicly stated that these newspaper reports are without foundation; that I made no contact with any official or agency of government in this situation or any other, on behalf of my brother, his company, or any other individual or company in the petroleum industry," Carey's said.

Carey also denied reports he worked with Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., to gain approval for the licenses. Sparkman has also denied any connection with Carey and said he did mention the case to Federal Energy Office officials, but said he never tried to bring pressure.

Cox newspapers originally reported that Carey and Sparkman used their influence to obtain permission for Chamberlain's firm, Citronelle-Mobile Gathering, Inc., to sell domestic oil to a refinery in the Bahamas owned by the older Carey.

The oil, in turn, was processed and sold in the New York City area as imported oil, thus exempt from the price levels on domestic oil.

Giancana's Associates to Testify

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two associates of former crime syndicate chief Sam "Momo" Giancana will be subpoenaed to testify before a Cook County grand jury investigating his slaying — but authorities doubt they will have much to say.

The state's attorney's office said Tuesday it will subpoena Charles "Chuckie" English, identified as a jukebox racketeer and friend of Giancana, and Dominic Blasi, bodyguard and chauffeur for the slain playboy syndicate chief.

Deputy State's Attorney Kenneth Gillis said Anthony

"Big Tuna" Accardo, a reputed elder statesman of the syndicate, may be subpoenaed later.

Authorities were expected to ask English and Blasi what they know of a gathering at Giancana's suburban Oak Park home a few hours before he was shot and killed Thursday.

Gillis, in charge of the state's attorney's special prosecutions unit, did not appear optimistic of getting much information from subpoenaed mobsters. He said gangland figures have a habit of claiming Fifth Amendment rights not to in-criminate themselves.

Some of Giancana's family members also were reported to have attended the "welcome home" party for the 67-year-old mobster, who had just returned from a gall bladder operation at Houston, Tex. Gillis said three relatives of Giancana may be subpoenaed or may appear voluntarily before the grand jury.

Gillis said other, unidentified syndicate figures may be subpoenaed in the future in an attempt to learn who shot down Giancana while he fried a late night snack of sausages and spinach and sliced a loaf of Italian bread in his basement kitchen.

"There is every indication Giancana knew the gunman," First Assistant State's Attorney Ralph Berkowitz said.

Gillis said his office is investigating rumors Giancana left a letter in a safety deposit box for law enforcement authorities on the chance he would be murdered.

No such letter has been found, he said, but a search will be made.

He added, "The inheritance tax division has authority to open boxes — if there are any."

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

June 25, 1775:

General Thomas Gage, the Royal Governor of Massachusetts and the commander of all British forces in the colonies, sends the Ministry in London his official account of the June 17 encounter with the colonists on Bunker Hill: "This action has shown the superiority of the King's troops, who, under every disadvantage, attacked and defeated above three times their number, strongly posted and covered by breastworks." In a letter to Lord Dartmouth, Secretary for the Colonies, accompanying the official report, Gage indicates a growing respect for the American colonists: "I wish most sincerely that [Bunker Hill] had not cost us so dear. . . . We have lost some extremely good officers. The trials we have had show [that] the rebels are not the despicable rabble too many have supposed them to be."

Good Bill

The state assembly has moved wisely in endorsing legislation calling for a plant by plant review on construction of any new nuclear facilities. Major industries and the State Power Authority have been prone to jump on the nuclear bandwagon even though many questions regarding safety are still unanswered. Under the assembly bill the SPA would be converted into an Energy and Research Development Authority Commission to investigate other forms of energy such as solar, wind and waste materials. The legislation also requires that the expanding or building of nuclear plants could only be done with the approval of the state legislature.

The gentlemen at Albany have shown some sound thinking in this matter, and hopefully their efforts will be copied throughout the nation. With the excuse that nuclear power is a cheap source of energy, a claim that has lately been strongly disputed, industry and government both are rushing pell mell into potentially dangerous waters. Perhaps the atom is the answer to this country's energy needs, but perhaps crash programs in developing other energy sources may also be solutions. Until all questions of plant safety and waste disposal are completely answered, nuclear power development should be broached cautiously.

The assembly's legislation will now be debated in the state senate amid reports that it faces a rough time there. Why this should be so unclear; what is clear, and the senators must realize it, is the safety of the citizens of this state.

WASHINGTON—Sex has become a booming backdoor business in Washington.

A silkstocking call girl service, for example, provides shapely "masseuses" for diplomats, dignitaries and visiting businessmen seeking $75 thrills.

The girls can be ordered to specification by telephone from dial-a-date outfits, which advertise in the yellow pages. "Let your fingers do the street-walking" might be their motto.

They offer room service at some of Washington's finest hotels. The girls will accept payment in cash, travelers checks or, if the customer prefers credit, sometimes by BankAmericard.

One of our reporters, posing as a potential client, was quoted rates from $20 for a simple massage to $75 for a more titillating experience. The massage promoters were careful not to offer outright intercourse. But the innuendo was clear that sex was the real service for sale.

The mode of sex, said a man at Grecian Dial-A-Massage, was "pretty much up to the masseuse." At Diversified Outside Calls, a woman answering suggested "if you talk to the masseuse," she "might" agree to intercourse. The responses were similar from Dial-A-Date Club, Playmate Internationale and Swingers International.

The most candid of the operators was Hal O'Brien who runs Selectra Mate and other "out-call" services from a suite high over Washington's famous Dupont Circle. He gives clients a summary of Washington law on the subject, with a specific warning that intercourse with the "masseuse" is a criminal offense.

But he adds meaningfully that his girls "are over 21, and we don't control their acts." He has never known one of them to bring charges against a client.

One tactic used by the masseuses, acknowledged O'Brien was to strip for action at the same time they refused to submit. Technically, this protects them from prosecution for soliciting. The ensuing sexual act then becomes rape, but the "victims" never file complaints.

Other Washington prostitutes operate out of luxury apartments. They also cater to the city's dignitaries, with price scales running as high as $200 a night.

Washington police are too busy patrolling the streets to keep a watch on philandering in hotels and apartments. Even if the girls are arrested, the police have found it difficult to get convictions.

So the call girl operations in Washington aren't troubled with recession.

SOVIET SNOOPING: For the sake of detente, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is helping the Soviets establish their embassy on high ground, which will give them a better vantage point for electronic espionage.

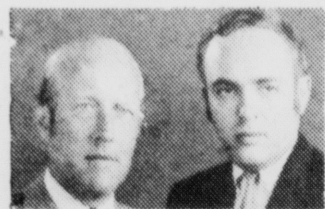

At the same time, the Soviets have offered the United States an embassy site in a low area along the Moscow River near the present U.S. chancery. "It's just a little further down the slope," said a source.

The two nations agreed to exchange new chanceries over six years ago, but they have been bickering ever since over sites and plans.

The Russians, with American concurrence, have settled on a 12.5-acre wooded site on Mount Alto, one of the highest points in Washington. They plan to erect a five-building complex, which would resemble a walled fortress.

From this prominent perch, according to our sources, the Soviets will get better results with their sophisticated electronic monitoring equipment. This is used to eavesdrop on long-distance telephone calls which for the most part, are transmitted by microwave.

Kissinger has strongly urged approval of the new Soviet embassy, although he has full knowledge that it will give the VIENTIANE, Laos—After six weeks of pressuring and humiliating the dwindling band of U.S. officials here, the newly Communist-controlled Laos government is demanding U.S. aid—perhaps as the price of continuing the last, minuscule American presence in Communist Indochina.

Whether Communist Pathet Lao leaders would respond to a refusal of aid from Washington by provocations intended to end U.S.-Laos diplomatic relations is unknown. The Pathet Lao central committee has been meeting hard by the North Vietnamese border at its fortress city of Samneua, forbidden territory for U.S. officials. That means the U.S. embassy here, once the military and political nerve center of Laos, awaits news of its fate decided by men the Americans have never met at a place they have never seen.

Thus, following the sudden collapse of South Vietnam and Cambodia, American humiliation in Laos lingers on as a reminder of the utter failure of U.S. policy in Indochina. The first, inevitable domino after the Vietnam debacle, Laos is also visible evidence to the rest of Southeast Asia of what happened to those who cast their lot with Washington.

Under an agreement signed here May 27 while a Communist-led mob howled outside and three Americans were held captive, the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) will close June 30 and turn over its property to the Lao government. U.S. personnel here, once approaching 2,000, totals 99 at this writing and will soon drop to 50.

But statistics do not reflect the systematic harassment of Americans here. On the pretext that it is permitted by the May 27 agreement, homes of departing AID officials have been ransacked by some of the 6,000 Pathet Lao soldiers who have entered this dusty little capital. Similarly, four autos from the U.S. Defense attaché's office have been seized. When a U.S. Air Force major vigorously protested one such seizure, a Pathet Lao trooper ended the debate by sticking his rifle in the major's face.

Such outrageous behavior is accompanied by demands for aid. A U.S. officer recently met with Kham Ouane Poupha, the Communist now running the defense ministry, to discuss longtime U.S. rice handouts to the Royal Lao army (which is now controlled by Communist unit "advisers"). But first, said the American, how about getting back our four cars? The reply: "Let's not talk about trivia, but discuss something important: rice distribution."

That priority on aid was emphasized by one Pathet Lao official here who told us, "The Lao people are ready to receive aid without strings." Repeatedly emphasizing that readiness during a one-hour interview, he also declared that "American bombing for 20 years . . . has made the Lao people very angry at the American government." Translation: the Pathet Lao want cash payments in lieu of war reparations.

While insisting they will not tolerate coercion, U.S. diplomats here seem to favor some aid—which runs $30 million for the current year—on grounds that Laos is no Cambodia, a point stressed to Assistant Secretary of State Philip Habib during his recent visit here. They see aid as a possible lever to soften Laotian Communism, reduce North Vietnamese control and perhaps maintain a vestigial American influence. But this view might soon be proved as erroneous as was the embassy's past forecast that the shaky Laotian coalition would survive the fall of Saigon.

Prince Souvanna Phouma, who remains as nominal prime minister, has succumbed to wishful thinking and contends he has achieved his lifelong goal of an independent, unified Laos. In truth, he has become a figurehead without power. When he ordered demonstrators removed from the U.S. AID compound, for example, his Communist ministers said yes, sir, and then ignored the order.

Even the top Communist in the government, foreign minister Phoumi Vongvichit, ranks no better than third or fourth in the Pathet Lao hierarchy. The real leader is Kayson Phomvihane, who has never left the caves of Samneua to visit Vientiane. "I have misgivings about the outlook of a man who spends his life in a cave," one Western diplomat here told us.

Although North Vietnamese are not visible in Vientiane, they may well be ruling this country from the caves of Samneua. King Savang Vatthana, after paying his first ceremonial visit to Samneua last month, remarked privately that an awful lot of Vietnamese seemed to be around. Unlike Cambodia, the war in Laos was fought mainly by North Vietnamese troops who remain here in force (an educated guess: 20,000).

Nor is it likely that the present sleepy brand of Communism in Vientiane will last long. While having taken control of the government, Pathet Lao ranks are still thin with no more than five Communist officials in some ministries. Many more will follow. Moreover, with crime and inflation both rampant in Vientiane, harsher rule is inevitable.

The question, then, for Washington: shall any aid be given to a government dominated by Communists, probably controlled by Hanoi and managed from caves out of bounds for Americans? Add, the coercive tone in demands, for aid following the Pathet-Lao behavior of recent weeks, and this might be one East Asian nation where total disengagement—while keeping diplomatic relations, if possible—could prove the least humiliating U.S. course as seen by the rest of the region.

USSR a superior listening post to the one that the Soviets are permitting the United States to build in Moscow.

Reportedly under State Department prodding, the General Services Administration has filed an environmental impact statement calling for ratification "in the spirit of detente." Failure to approve the proposal, says the GSA, could "create an international situation."

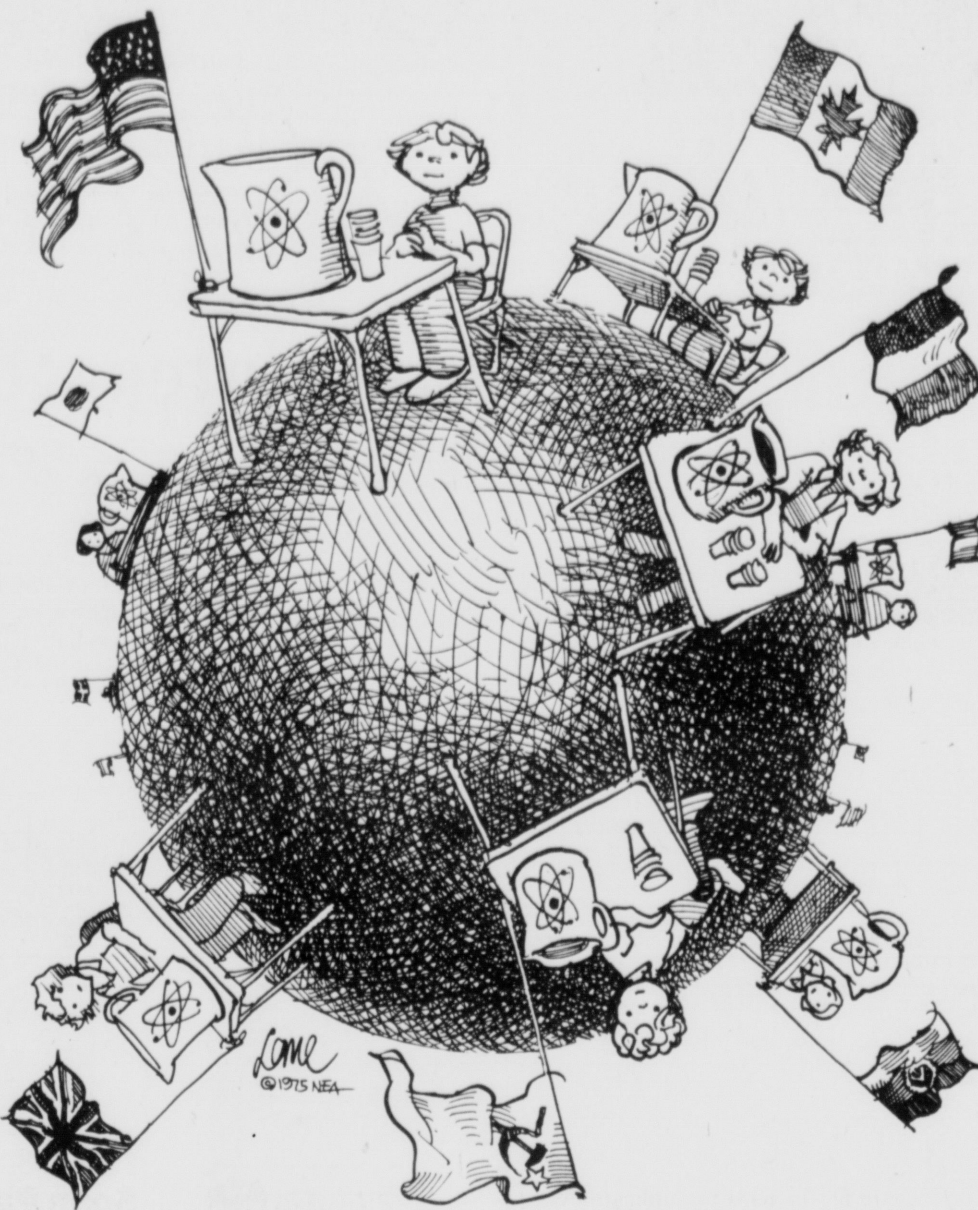

Not only have the Soviets provided the U.S. embassy with a low-level location, but they have objected to every construction plan the United States has submitted. The latest set of plans, according to sources with direct knowledge of the situation, were sent back with a list of 27 objections.

Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who oversees the State Department budget, has held up approval of the new Soviet embassy until the United States is permitted to go ahead with its construction.

As a result, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin recently called at the State Department and notified Assistant Secretary Arthur Hartman that the Kremlin had dropped all objections to the U.S. construction plans.

The United States could even use "Black bricks," said the frustrated Dobrynin.

Footnote: A State Department spokesman said the Soviets had not raised "objections" but had merely offered recommendations. Another spokesman in Hartman's office said our account of the conversation with Dobrynin was "inaccurate and incomplete." But he refused to explain the alleged inaccuracies, claiming it "was a private conversation and we don't want to go into it. Our sources, in fact, are wholly familiar with the incident and we have confidence they gave us an accurate report."

Final Humiliation in Indochina

Some Stories Hard to Believe

Big John was a great storyteller. It was difficult to find the place where truth ended and the embroidery began. He drew great joy from fascinating people who came to our house.

He had a good vocabulary and used it like the deep notes of a theater organ. Looking backward—and listening—I can see the round ruddy face, the white hair, the sparkling blue eyes and I marvel that a non-writer knew how to paint the scene and the weather first, then drop the characters into each story like croutons on pea soup.

On one story I challenged him, and Big John became enraged. He was close to disowning me again when he heard my apology. Sometimes he followed me to the bedroom to disown me, depending upon his condition and mine.

The story was about an engagement party he attended at the turn of the century. There were pretty girls in floor-length gowns and ice cream swirls of hair. And there were boys in stiff collars, hair parted in the middle and slicked to the ears.

The merrymakers played several games. One was called "Who's next to be married?" It involved the girl who was engaged standing in a circle of girls holding a hand mirror. She was blindfolded and spun in dizzy circles.

When she stopped, the mirror would be pointed at one girl. The winner—if that is the proper term—took the mirror and walked to the head of the stairs.

At the top, her back was to the staircase. By holding the mirror tilted, she was able to look down the stairway and see her bridegroom-to-be. It was just a game.

This one held the error over her shoulder. My father said that a stranger, a handsome-looking man in a full dress suit and gleaming high hat, walked through the group at the bottom of the stairs and started up.

The girl's happy face turned suddenly to terror. She clutched her bosom and fell in a dead faint. The mirror clattered down the stairs and the stranger disappeared.

My father noticed, as the man started upward, that he had one shoe and one cloven foot. After he disappeared, the people who owned the house found the hot searing imprint of a cloven hoof on every other step.

The young lady had been promised in marriage to Satan himself. When she recovered consciousness, Big John told me sadly, the poor girl's mind was deranged.

When I protested, he put on his don't-tell-me-I-was-there snarl. My mother seldom listened to his painted poems. "He's a damn liar," she said, and then looked at the kitchen ceiling and said, "God forgive me."

There was another story he told that I tried hard to believe. It happened on a cold winter night in 1906 at the West 8th St. station of the Jersey Central Railroad.

A young lady was being walked home toward Bergen Point by her fiancé. He had been pressing her to marry him, but she had declined with grace. "Harry," she said, "I want a good solid marriage. You tell me you love me, but how can I tell?"

He said he knew his love was eternal, but he couldn't prove it. In caprice, she asked him to take her to the station platform for some gum. Harry did it. "Shall we walk across the tracks instead of going down to the street?" He was ready to say yes to anything.

There is a big curve in four tracks at this point. The couple saw workers waiting for a commuter train, but it didn't alarm them. They made it halfway across the first track when the girl's heel caught in a closed switch.

Harry bent to lift the shoe out. Then he heard the whistle of the oncoming train. Frantically, he tried to unlatch the high shoe. He didn't make it. When he saw the saffron light of the locomotive, he jumped to his feet. "Run!" the girl shrieked. "Run, Harry!"

He clasped her in his arms. Her cheek was as cold as the night. Commuters were leaning down from the platform trying to reach the couple. They heard him shout, "Now do you believe I love you?"

Both were killed by the train. I have seen my old man make people cry with that one. He went through two rounds of port wine telling it. I would like to believe it—I want to believe it—but I keep hearing momma's critique.

Lady Luck Queen Not the Computer

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — Engineer Keith Taft hid a homemade computer under his clothes when he took on Lady Luck at the blackjack tables, but she stood up to his challenge.

"God doesn't want me to become a millionaire through gambling," he said Monday.

Taft, 41, spent 1,000 hours studying the mathematics of blackjack. He spent another 1,000 hours developing a winner's computer program.

Then he designed and built the $50,000 portable minicomputer he wore beneath his clothing while playing blackjack all over Nevada. The computer, which had to make as many as 200,000 calculations in less than a second, provided him a readout in the rim of his eyeglasses where color codes flashed to advise him whether to stand pat or take another card. He fed information into the hidden computer through miniature switches connected to his toes.

But trouble came when he went for broke by escalating his betting. He made $1,300 in 90 minutes one weekend, but lost $4,400 in a 30-hour marathon the next.

Since he had promised his wife he would risk no more than $4,000 on his venture, he quit.

"Lady Luck is still the reigning element in gambling, no matter how good your computer," said Taft, who asserts that he was beaten by better than 1000-to-1 odds.

Taft still hopes to come out a winner from his venture. He is searching for a movie script writer who might want to do "The Fastest Toe In the West." But there will be no more trips to the gambling spas.

Taft said he has turned down many offers to sell his machine and plans to show it to Nevada gaming authorities this week.

But he warned that it would not be hard to duplicate by anybody willing to put in the hours he did.

"I am still convinced that if a person had sufficient capital, about $40,000, he could make this work." He said that he believed there is no way somebody who gambled 300 hours with the aid of the computer could lose at blackjack.

DeBakey Hits Federal Fund Lack

ALBANY (UPI)—Dr. Michael E. DeBakey says a lack of federal funding has cut medical research to level below that of several years ago.

At the dedication of a new research facility Sunday, DeBakey also repeated his criticism of heart transplant operations, urging instead stepped up research to combat the causes of heart disease.

The 66-year old surgeon, whose research led to the development of open heart surgery, said because federal funding has not increased with the rate of inflation, "We are doing less than the level of study we were doing several years ago."

He was the main speaker at dedication ceremonies for the Neil Hellman Medical Research Center at the Albany Medical College.

DeBakey, who directs the Cardiovascular Research and Training Center in Houston, said heart transplants are not in the news regularly as they were a few years ago because they "lacked significance in the first place." He said transplants are not the future for conquering heart disease because "they are not readily available to most people."

The surgeon said transplants "can never become" readily available and that attention should focus on curing "what you commonly call hardening of the arteries," which "accounts for 85 percent" of heart disease.

He said that heart transplants were "never a significant advance, if you could call them an advance at all."

About malpractice suits DeBakey said, "rampant" legal claims present "a serious problem to the public that should be examined very closely."

He declined to comment about physicians in New York, California and elsewhere who have withheld services in protest of malpractice insurance costs, saying, "I won't pass judgment on what others do."

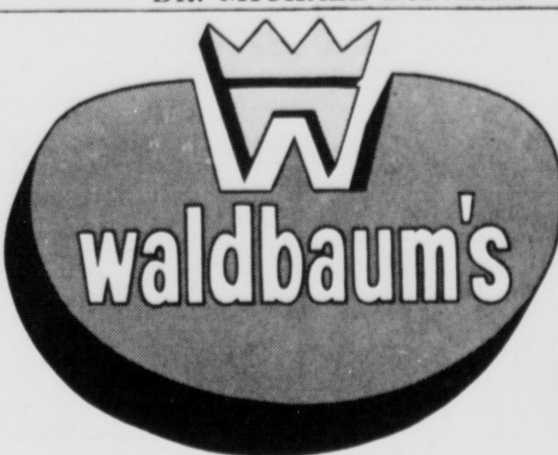

He said of his own medical staff in Houston, "We have no intention of striking."

Catskill Commission

Compromise Bill

Now In Danger

By Hugh Reynolds

ALBANY The extension of the Catskill Commission, for which a compromise bill was hammered out only a few weeks ago, again appears in danger.

Assemblyman Jean Amato (D-98th Dist.) has withdrawn her support for a compromise bill she helped draft after a weekend meeting with members of the Sullivan County Board of Supervisors which is solidly opposed to the new bill.

The compromise bill differs significantly from the existing legislation in the makeup of the commission. Rather than 10 members appointed by the governor (four) and the legislature, the new bill calls for 15 members of which four are appointed by the governor, two each by the leaders of the Assembly and Senate and seven from the counties that make up the Catskill Study Region.

The Sullivan County Board of Supervisors wants all 15 appointed by the various county governments in the region to the exclusion of any Albany appointments.

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) was of that view originally, but as the new bill's prime sponsor, has come around considerably.

"This (proposed) bill represents a compromise that took months of hard labor (since January) and months of negotiation in the senate, the Assembly and the region and represents a considerable compromise on my part from my original position," Hinchey said. "I think what we've got now is a better bill than my original bill."

Hinchey has been quoted as feeling "betrayed" by Miss Amato's sudden defection but in a Freeman interview he seemed more concerned about the immediate future of the bill than its most recent past.

"I think the bill stands on its merits," he said. "I'm going to go up there and work on getting it passed. The question is not whether some local politicians like it but what's good for the region. This bill has solid support in Ulster County, particularly among the sportsmen and I intend to push it," Hinchey said.

Hinchey says he expects the region will be "well represented" even given the fact that the majority of the appointees will come from state government officials. "I'm sure the governor and/or the Assembly leadership will honor our (Hinchey's and Amato's) requests for members from the region," Hinchey said. "It's entirely possible that the majority of the new commission could be local members."

Just what effect Miss Amato's opposition to the bill will have isn't clear at this point. It could delay its passage if her name is withdrawn as a sponsor, because according to Hinchey, it would involve redrafting and reprinting which could take several days. The Assembly is attempting to adjourn by the end of this week, no later than the end of next week.

The commission officially expires June 30 unless new Legislation is passed.

A Splash Into Summer

Ulster Liberal Party Clarifies Position On Rockefeller Report

KINGSTON The Ulster County Liberal Party has released a statement further clarifying its position on the relationship of the Rockefeller Commission report on the CIA to the possibility of CIA involvement in the assassination of former President John F. Kennedy.

Paul Atkinson, Liberal Party acting vice chairman, has charged the Rockefeller Commission with failure to report much of the testimony brought to its attention.

Among the most important items withheld, according to Atkinson, was the fact that the pathologist who examined Kennedy's body after the 1963 autopsy testified for five hours before the commission that he believed the late president to have been the victim of a conspiracy. That expert is now furious, Atkinson contends, because the commission chose to ignore his entire testimony with the exception of two sentences which they allegedly lifted out of proper context to support their theory that Lee Harvey Oswald had acted alone.

The commission also chose to be selective about what it reported regarding the now famous Abraham Zapruder film, Atkinson said. "They were quick to point out that the violent backward jerking motion of Kennedy as he was hit did not necessarily indicate a direct frontal hit, but could have been caused by the bullet entering certain vital areas of the brain," Atkinson said. "They failed, however, to even mention the single most damaging piece of evidence from the Zapruder film, which shows the lapse of seconds between the time Kennedy was hit and the time Gov. Connally was hit."

Atkinson said that part of the evidence withheld from the original Warren Report by the FBI was the fact that the FBI over a decade ago had one of its own top firearms experts try to duplicate Oswald's feat using the same rifle Oswald had used in Dallas.

"The conclusion," Atkinson asserted, "was that, even without taking time to aim, it was physically impossible to fire two shots from Oswald's rifle in the length of time allotted. Therefore, if you have two bullets involved, as the commission has admitted, you automatically have a minimum of two assassins."

"Why have at least two government agencies and now the Rockefeller Commission participated in a coverup of this and other equally important information which the public has a right to know? If Kennedy was the victim of a communist conspiracy, or the victim of a gangland conspiracy or a conspiracy of radicals or kooks, why didn't the government go after them? It would have made no sense for government agencies to participate in a coverup to protect their enemies. It would only make sense if they were protecting someone within their own ranks."

Impact Bill Is Passed

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey now controls the fate of a bill termed by supporters as the session's major environmental legislation and blasted by opponents as a roadblock to the economy.

The Senate Tuesday night passed, 35-23, and sent to Carey a measure which would require a review of a proposed project's possible impact on the environment before any major construction could be started.

Opponents claimed the measure virtually would bring all construction to a halt but supporters argued that it was only a small step toward saving the environment.

Sen. Bernard C. Smith, R-

Northport, the bill's Senate sponsor, and Sen. John Caemmerer, R-East Williston, who opposed the measure vehemently during the long debate, clashed several times.

Smith, ordinarily quiet and soft spoken, shook his finger at Caemmerer at one point, declaring his Long Island colleague's statement that the measure would give the commissioner of environmental conservation power to halt project "just is not so senator, and you know it is not so."

Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-Cornwall-on-Hudson, another opponent, ticked off a long list of projects in the Hudson Valley which he said had been delayed or blocked by present environmental rules. He argued that the more than $2 billion in projects would mean jobs and that the economy was vital.

Democrat Senate Minority Leader Manfred Ohrenstein of Manhattan, however, declared the fears were "grossly exaggerated" and that the bill "allows the public to know; it does not allow government to stop anything."

The measure gained Assembly approval last month.

It calls for a review by the Department of Environmental Conservation of any project, such as a road or a new building, "which may have a significant effect on the environment."

AREA NEWS TODAY

Health Care Assurances Given

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON Assurances that Ulster County residents will continue to have the services of its physicians and hospitals after the July 1 deadline to stop practice when present malpractice insurance runs out, were given Tuesday by Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, chief of the Department of Surgery at Benedictine Hospital and Anthony R. Triulzi, administrator of Kingston Hospital.

Addressing a Lions Club luncheon at the Gov. Clinton Hotel, Dr. Gorman said "there is no need to panic. I don't feel any of the men are going to strike." Triulzi suggested that even if those physicians who have said they won't be practicing after June 30 don't, there will be enough physicians to provide health care.

Outlining the history of the malpractice crisis, Dr. Gorman recalled that prior to now physicians and hospital administrators had very little dialogue between them but now with a mutuality of problems they are seeking solutions satisfactory to all.

"Malpractice cases are fantastic with $3 and $4 million dollar suits not at all unique," Dr. Gorman said adding that even $6 million verdicts have been reached, something he calls "unbelievable and discriminatory."

Calling for more reasonable judgments, the doctor feels the solution lies in the reassessment and realignment of lawyer's contingency fees of 40 and 50 percent.

Dr. Gorman called for:

- Something comparable to a compensation court.
- A mediation panel to judge the merits of a case for trial with its judgment entered into the court record.
- Physicians policing themselves through continuing education, the use of standing committees such as tissue committees and peer review.

He pointed out, however that such standing committees do exist, that his hospital's physicians are qualified and that department heads oversee the quality of work done.

Dr. Gorman blamed the malpractice problem on a number of factors including the fact that we can't keep up with the medical progress of the last 30 years but at the same time people are demanding and expecting excellent care. He agreed that they should "expect" it but felt their "demands" should be reassessed.

"They have the feeling that all physicians are like Marcus Welby. Well, they shouldn't. We're not," Dr. Gorman said, explaining that physician's judgment plays a large part. "We are human. We are guided by mistakes in judgment. We are guided by total patient care," adding that he feels there should be more dialogue between physicians and patients and their families.

Triulzi said that the crisis is not as great at the hospital as it is with the medical society but that employers are liable for the acts of employees done within the scope of the employer. "Everytime a hospital extends privileges to a physician the hospital is responsible," he explained. He recalled that when a physician's malpractice suit occurs, the hospital is called in in every suit.

He called for a limit on liability so as not to pass the additional charges on to the patient. Asked if there is a ceiling on court awards, Triulzi said the state legislature has yet to come up with such measures. Triulzi said that surprisingly it is not the incompetent hospitals and doctors who are sued most frequently but rather teaching hospitals and physicians.

The administrator explained that reimbursement for Blue Cross, Medicare and Medicaid is still predicated on 1973 rates with cost of living increases, but this fails to keep step with malpractice insurance increases. Triulzi said that Kingston Hospital will experience a 160 percent increase in malpractice insurance which he will appeal.

Asked if physicians will probably be giving more tests to patients as a means of self-protection, Dr. Gorman said "We all practice defensive medicine . . . and that's expensive medicine."

N-Plant Spews A-Cloud

GROTON, CONN.

A cloud of radioactive gases from the nearby Millstone I nuclear power plant fell on Groton Tuesday, setting off alarms which warn shipyard workers of increased levels of radioactivity near nuclear submarines.

The plant is the same one which Atomic and Space Development Authority (ASDA) officials cited last year in an attempt to show just how beneficial nuclear development could be to a community.

Town of Lloyd officials, along with ASDA representatives and a Freeman reporter, toured Millstone I last June, and were consistently told by local officials that the community has reaped numerous benefits from the atomic facility. ASDA has determined that a site in the Town of Lloyd could be suitable for as many as four nuclear power plants, all with a greater capacity than the Millstone I unit.

According to United Press International, the radioactivity level reported in Groton Tuesday was about 18 times as high as new federal standards permit. But because the Millstone plant is one of the country's older atomic units, the new federal standards are not yet in force there.

The gases from Millstone's 375-foot stack, UPI was told, usually disperse over a broad area. They instead converged on Groton Tuesday because of an unusually thick layer of air and accompanying southwesterly winds.

During last June's tour of Millstone I, Town of Waterford officials expressed enthusiasm over the benefits they have derived from the atomic facility.

One Waterford official told the Freeman during the tour that neighboring communities "drool at the tax money" that the nuclear plant generates; another said that the only opposition to the atomic plant has come from a few "conservationists."

Questioned at the time about the health and safety aspects of the facility, First Selectman Herbert Davis commented, "Everything has a backup and the backup has a backup . . . It's a calculated risk, but it's so minimal that it shouldn't even be considered."

A second atomic facility in Waterford is nearing completion, and a third is on the drawing board. Millstone I has been in operation since 1953.

JDA Executive Director Explains Authority Functions

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

That the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce places considerable importance on continued industrial development opportunities was indicated by the speaker it selected for the final Chamber breakfast meeting of the summer.

That G. Brandon Smith, executive director of the New York State Job Development Authority (JDA), has confidence in the continued success and growth of his multi-million dollar state loan agency is apparent. Addressing some 50 Chamber members at Tuesday's breakfast meeting, Smith spoke with the assuredness of a man who knows full well that JDA exists in the right place at the right time.

Smith devoted most of his brief address Tuesday explaining the intent and procedures of JDA. The authority itself was established in 1962 for the purpose of financing industrial expansion in New York State; Smith has served as its executive director since 1970, and was comptroller-treasurer for five years before that.

Initially, said Smith, JDA was authorized to loan up to 30 percent of the cost of acquisition of property for new industrial construction. Now, the authority is permitted to loan up to 40 percent of the cost of acquisition of land or construction of a new facility. In addition, JDA is able to finance 40 percent of the cost of new machinery or equipment to be used in a newly constructed plant.

To date, JDA has approved 659 loans valued at $88 million in support of industrial development projects that exceed $303 million in cost. Eighty-nine loans totaling $12 million were approved during the state fiscal year that ended March 31.

Ulster County is no stranger to JDA's largesse. In 1974, three local firms—Rotron, Jay Steel and Wonderly Co.—received loans totaling $336,000 for new construction and expansion projects.

Much of the credit for those three loans can be given to the Kingston Area Industrial Development Corp., a non-profit organization which acts as a liaison between JDA and prospective industrial borrowers. Smith emphasized Tuesday that JDA loans must be stimulated by local communities, and that the available JDA funds are apportioned on a "first come, first served basis." "There isn't any limit to how much we can loan to a given community or area," said Smith, "we process the applications as they are received."

'Proud Heritage of Freedom'

By Carl Graham

KINGSTON

"I'm confident that your generation will make its contribution to sustaining this nation's proud heritage of freedom—a heritage that I truly believe stands unequalled in the world," John P. Mohr told the Class of 1975 at Kingston High School graduation ceremonies Tuesday night at Dietz Stadium.

Mohr, a retired assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, noted that he was returning 45 years to the day from his own graduation ("About the time they invented the wheel and discovered the earth was round") with the KHS Class of 1930.

"There were problems back then, you know," Mohr said, recalling the St. Valentine Day Massacre, the stock market crash, the Depression, and the march on Washington by disgruntled World War I veterans.

"Young people generally felt our system of government provided adequate lawful means of bringing about needed reforms. And as it turned out, they were right. In that respect, there is not much difference between my generation and yours," Mohr said.

Saying we inherit "a magnificent spectrum of rights" by being born American, Mohr cautioned graduates that "the rich heritage of liberties is accompanied by responsibilities. These liberties are sustained only by the willingness of each generation to accept the responsibilities of citizenship."

In a lighter vein, Mohr drew a laugh from students and proved that FBI agents don't necessarily stop gathering intelligence when they retire by remarking: "I even heard a rumor that the principal's door was glued shut in some school around here."

Mohr also recalled that he was known as "The Sheik" while in high school. "I'm at a loss to know why," he said, "but to be on the safe side, I never mentioned that nickname to John Edgar Hoover during my 33 years in the FBI."

Ann Markes, who led the 695 graduates with a 95.725 average, in her valedictory address called on her classmates to become involved in the nation's problems. "The slogan of 1775 was 'Don't tread on me,'" she said. "The slogan of 1975 is 'Don't count on me.' Is that your philosophy? If so, you don't have a right to complain about anything."

Louis A. Salzmann, superintendent of schools, presented a lengthy list of scholarships and awards for academic excellence in various subjects to members of the graduating class. He said that the grants and awards totaled $721,000 ("More than $1,000 a day" for their four years of high school) and noted that Kingston High School was one of only 10 in the country to have two graduates appointed to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

The 49 honor graduates seated on the podium for the ceremonies were headed by Miss Markes, salutatorian Debra Myer with a 95.538 average, and Diane Ramus, an August, 1974, graduate who compiled a 97.866 average. Another 24 members of the graduating class were awarded New York State Regents Scholarships.

The two-hour ceremony went off without a hitch in perfect weather, a decided contrast to last year's ceremonies in stifling Kate Walton Field House. Ward Todd, president of the board of education, presented diplomas to the graduates, assisted by board member W. James Penrose.

The invocation was by Rabbi Aryeh-Lev Lupkin, of Congregation Ahavath Israel, who called on graduates to "do justice, show mercy, and walk humbly."

Buckley-Backed Bill Would Heavily Trim Food Stamp Rolls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nearly 70 members of Congress have introduced a bill aimed at cutting millions of people off the government's food stamp rolls, but informed sources indicated doubt the administration would back the proposal.

Conservative Sen. James Buckley, N.Y., said the plan would reduce the cost of the mushrooming program by $2 billion or more a year, while simultaneously allowing an immediate 29 percent increase in benefits to "genuinely needy" people who remain on stamp rolls.

Administration officials had no immediate comment on the bill introduced Monday by House and Senate members headed by Buckley and Rep. Robert Michel (R-Ill.) But a congressional source said the administration's plan for stamp reform, which is due to reach Congress by June 30, was understood to be "not nearly as drastic" as the Buckley-Michel bill.

Buckley told a news conference the stamp program "is out of control," noting it cost $40 million when it began about a decade ago. Administration experts estimate the cost could reach $6.5 billion in the year beginning July 1.

The bill would limit food stamps mainly to people whose gross incomes fall within government poverty guidelines. Eligibility now is based on a net income figure calculated by using a complex list of deductions for items including taxes and some medical, housing and other costs. In some cases, the present deduction system makes families eligible even though their gross earnings are well above the official poverty line. Buckley and Michel said the only deduction to be retained would be a flat $25 a month for the elderly.

A family of four now is eligible for stamps if it is on welfare, or if it is not and has a net income after deductions of $513 a month or less.

The cutoff will rise July 1 to $540 a month or $6,480 a year.

The present deduction system allows some families with gross incomes of $10,000 and more to show net figures of $6,480 or under for food stamp eligibility. Nearly 20 million Americans currently draw food stamps. Specialists estimate 20-50 per cent of these people might be ruled out of the stamp program by the Buckley-Michel bill.

Under the stamp program, eligible needy people use their own cash to buy a monthly allotment of food stamps worth more than the cash price. The stamps can then be used like cash to buy groceries.

Taxing Business May Hurt Public

MORAN, WYO. The American Bankers Association (ABA) feels that a more restrictive business tax policy will hurt business and thereby be felt by the average consumer.

Speaking before the annual convention of the Montana Bankers Association, held in Moran, Wyo., Rex J. Morthland, chairman of the ABA's governing council, warned that "a tax policy that restricts the formation of capital, that hinders investment in new plant and equipment, that restricts foreign investment by U.S. corporations, would impose severe costs on businesses and reduce competition."

Various proposals for tax revisions are to be considered by the House Ways and Means Committee next month, Morthland noted. He said that during the 1960s America had the "worst record of capital investment among the major industrialized nations of the free world, with the exception of the United Kingdom."

Morthland contended that the country's $4.5 trillion capital needs estimated for the next 10 years by the New York Stock Exchange can be met in three ways: savings by government, corporations and individuals; growth in the nation's money supply; and investment in the U.S. by foreign sources.

"Clearly, growth in the money supply without a corresponding increase in productivity spells renewed inflation and investments by foreigners are unreliable and unpredictable in amount," he said. "Therefore, the only real alternative is increased savings and capital formation."

He called for an "end to double taxation of corporate profits" and a "reduction of the current 30 percent withholding tax applied to returns on certain kinds of foreign investments in the U.S."

Morthland stressed the importance of U.S.-based multinational corporations as creators of capital strength for our economy, and asked that existing tax provisions permitting these corporations to operate profitably overseas be retained.

He called for careful examination of legislative proposals aimed at discouraging worldwide activities of American companies by eliminating tax deferral of earnings of foreign subsidiaries and modifying the foreign tax credit.

Vegetable Factory Grows Food All Year Long

BIG INDIAN

According to Fred Schwartz, the Vegetable Factory is the first greenhouse designed to grow vegetables economically all year long.

Schwartz, speaking at this Catskill Mountain hamlet, claimed that his shatterproof, double-walled greenhouse can yield tomatoes at a cost of about six cents a pound, leaf lettuce at 16 cents a pound, and cucumbers at about 5 1/2 cents a pound because of the "unique energy saving construction of the greenhouse."

The prices quoted by this New York advertising agency executive who created the Vegetable Factory are based on yield reports by Garden Way Laboratories in Charlotte, Vt. during the 1973-74 winter growing season for two basic models.

The lab report indicated that 650 pounds of fresh vegetables could be grown annually in the free-standing model at an average cost of 19 cents a pound including all operating costs. Schwartz said this is enough to supply the average family of four most fresh vegetables needed for a year.

The twin pane walls are made of acrylic plastic reinforced with fiberglass. The translucent shatterproof panels are permanently bonded to a supporting aluminum grid core, and are designed to save great quantities of heat compared to conventional models.

Basic prices of two models are $499 and $799, in lean-to and free-standing models respectively.

No foundation is necessary, as panes will not buckle or break. It takes two people from four to six hours to assemble, said Schwartz. There are six-foot eaves and 7 1/2 to eight-foot center height in all models, making it unnecessary to stoop while gardening.

A recent Gallup Poll cited the fact that last summer 47 percent of all American families grew some form of vegetables, and there is a trend to grow your own.

A model in Ulster County is available for inspection at Rudi's Country Kitchen Restaurant and Conservatory, Route 28, 25 miles north of Kingston, in Big Indian. Vegetable Factory greenhouse technicians are available for free home consultation.

ROOMINESS AND ACCESSIBILITY

The problem in the Mother's Day Contest was to guess the aggregate value of everything displayed in Kaye Sports window in uptown Kingston. Mrs. Beulah Kelley's guess was just 27 cents over the retail value of $990.52, and she won everything in the window. The Uptown Businessmen's Association sponsored the contest, and its president Glenn Stampfle (L) watches as Mayor Francis Koenig presents Mrs. Kelley with one of the items she won.

FRANK W. KELLY

VERNON L. FROST

Town of Esopus Republican Committee has nominated Frank W. Kelly and Vernon L. Frost to oppose Democrat Louis M. Klein and fill the seat now held by Democrat Lewis C. Kirschner on the Ulster County Legislature. The third Dist. 6 legislator, Republican Glenn A. Debrosky of Rosendale will seek another term.

Kelly, a long-time resident and life-long Republican from West Esopus, is a self-employed businessman. A World War II veteran, he is active in political and community affairs, having served in many civic activities. He was a member of the advisory committee of the Town of Esopus Planning Board and served seven years on the board. He is a past president of the Town of Esopus Lions Club and is still an active member. At present, Kelly is serving Assemblyman Emeel Betros as his regional aide for the towns of Esopus, Lloyd and Marlboro in the 99th Assembly District.

Frost, who resides at 155 Schryver Street, Port Ewen, is married to the former Georganna Berryann and is the father of three sons, Gary, Randy and Terry.

A graduate of local schools, he was a member of the Armed Forces during World War II, serving in the European Theater of Operation with the Twelfth Armored Division.

He is a member of the Port Ewen Reformed Church, American Legion and the 40 & 8. He served two years as tax collector in the Port Ewen School District and seven years as trustee.

Presently employed by the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the Plumbing and Pipe Fitting Industry Local 223 covering the jurisdiction of Ulster County and part of Delaware County, Frost is secretary of the Ulster, Sullivan, Delaware and Greene County Building Trades Council.

Choice Of Dems

SHAWANGUNK Shawangunk Democrats have chosen 36-year-old Valerie Eldridge to be their candidate for county legislator from the eighth legislative district. The four-member district includes the towns of New Paltz and Gardiner as well as Shawangunk.

Mrs. Eldridge, who teaches state and local government at Orange County Community College, gained the Democratic nomination over Louis Dillon, a Wallkill businessman, in a closely contested race. Forty-three Democrats turned out to cast their ballots at the gathering, which was held recently at Wallkill Middle School.

Dillon was nominated by Robert Elliot, and Mrs. Eldridge's nomination was made by Larry Powell.

Mrs. Eldridge was born in France, and has lived in Shawangunk for the past seven years with her husband Richard and their two children. She received a masters degree in political science in 1973.

WHAT HAPPENED AT HEART THIS YEAR

FRIENDS OF HEART PICNIC JUNE 14

To thank volunteers in a very special way, the second annual Heart Picnic was held on Saturday, June 14, 10 to 4 p.m. at Sleepy Hollow Lake, Route 385, Athens (courtesy of the owner, Mr. Ray Hosterman). More than 600 people attended the self-supporting but non-profit affair. Drawing for the big Heart Giveaway, first prize a $750.00 Sunfish Sailboat was donated by Rent-A-Cruise of Catskill.

PENNY SOCIAL JUNE 29, NEEDS PRIZES Mrs. Bernard Carle, Chairman, asks that you contact her if you have prizes to donate for the big fund raising event to be held in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium. Drop-in time is 2-4 P.M.

SATELLITE OFFICE OPENED IN HUDSON. A Branch office, manned by Heart volunteers, has been established on the third floor of the Youth Center at 12 Warren Street, Hudson. It is open Mondays from 11:00 A.M. to 3:00 P.M.

NEW VOLUNTEER GROUP FORMED. The Helping Hearts were organized last fall to provide a pool of helpers for Heart programs and community services. Tri-County Chairman is Shirley Shumate; Ulster, Gloria Hillis; Greene, Gloria Haelein; and Columbia, Mildred Voderly. If you have hours to give, please contact one of these.

CORONARY RISK SCREENING REACHED 1900 PEOPLE THE FIRST YEAR to detect potential victims of heart attack and stroke. Originally the screening was planned for 500, but the teams became so efficient and the program so well attended that 1900 were tested for height, weight, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, and blood tests for diabetes, SGOT, bilirubin, Cholesterol and Triglyceride levels, blood tests for diabetes, SGOT, bilirubin, Cholesterol and Triglyceride levels, uric acid and urea nitrogens. Professional counseling was given to all. Over 100 volunteers helped make the program possible in five different locations.

HEART HEALTH SERIES of five lessons was offered to businesses and organizations. 6000 people were enrolled and urged to celebrate High Blood Pressure Month (May) by having theirs checked. Programs on nutrition were given for four senior citizens groups.

HAVE YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE CHECKED REGULARLY. Call us to see where you can have it done free. With the assistance of your Heart Chapter, free screenings were held in each county in May and more than 800 had their blood pressure checked.

THREE COLLEGE STUDENTS RECEIVED FIELD TRAINING AT THE MID-HUDSON HEART OFFICE Three Cortland seniors were permitted to do their field experience toward a degree in Health Education by spending two months each on Heart programs. Susan Wolk of Ellenville followed the Coronary Screening Program from start to finish. Dennis Crowell, Hurley, assisted with the new Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation training program; and Mary Regan of East Meadow, L.I., spent her time helping arrange and conduct the blood pressure clinics.

FIRST PHYSICIANS SEMINAR HELD IN KINGSTON ON CARDIOVASCULAR DISEASE More than 80 physicians and coronary care nurses attended all-day lectures by specialists from Albert Einstein and Jefferson Medical Schools, Cleveland Clinic and Montefiore Hospital in Manhattan. The day was so successful, it will become an annual event for Heart.

SOCIAL EVENT—COLUMBIA HEART BALL
Columbia County guests and Mrs. William D. Brinnier III, Executive Director and Brendon D. Alexander, President

NURSING EDUCATION Specialized coronary care for all heart attack victims could save about 50,000 lives per year. Trained hospital personnel have reduced in-hospital deaths by about 30%. Your Heart Chapter provides year-round training in the five hospitals with special equipment and films, supports a Coronary Care Workshop conducted at Kingston Hospital for all nurses in the area and conducts at least one annual teaching day on specialized areas of coronary care. Almost 1,000 RNs, PHNs and LPNs, and 142 physicians are on the mailing list for the quarterly Heart professional mailings.

RHEUMATIC FEVER CONTROL IS STILL NECESSARY Victims of rheumatic fever usually must have a daily dose of penicillin to keep from developing serious heart problems. In Greene and Ulster Counties, Heart makes it possible for people (109) to get their penicillin at a much reduced rate.

COLUMBIA COUNTY BALL Was held at Clover Reach Racquet and Swim Club this year, and a lovely time was had by the 140 people who attended. Chairman Mrs. Lewis Jarett reports that the profit will be more than $1,400.00. This is usually the only Heart Ball of the year, so why not plan to attend the next one!

FINAL 1974-75 BOARD MEETING IN GREENE COUNTY The last Board of directors meeting was held on June 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Memorial Hospital of Greene County. Reports on campaign, budget, program of work, pilot coronary screening, and nominating committees were prepared for presentation at the Association's Annual Meeting to be held in September.

CPR—THREE LETTERS THAT CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE

A man steps from the crowd. One minute he was healthy, filled with life. The next—excruciating pain—cardiac arrest. The victim slumps to the floor. His heart has stopped. Unless his heart starts pumping again within the next six minutes, brain cells may be damaged beyond repair. That's what happens when oxygen-rich blood fails to reach the brain.

A trained bystander in this human drama plays a leading role. He immediately begins a rescue procedure of mouth-to-mouth breathing, alternating with closed chest massage, the life-saving technique of cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). This action could restart the victim's stopped heart and restore life. Like thousands of others, his training has been provided by his local Heart Association. Countless victims of heart attack, electrocution, suffocation, drowning and drug overdose have been saved by men and women, even teenagers, trained in CPR.

CPR is indicated in cases of sudden heart stoppage due to such causes as heart attack, drug overdose, drowning and electric shock to maintain the flow of blood carrying oxygen to the vital organs until the heart begins to beat again.

CPR training was pioneered by the American Heart Association. And now, in cooperation with the American National Red Cross and other agencies, is an important part of the emergency care required to "maintain the body's basic life support systems" of breathing and circulation until more advanced life support is available. The Mid-Hudson Chapter is setting up Instructor-Trainee Courses in several areas.

The Heart Association plans to offer this course regularly in the three counties and will then supply instructors with the necessary teaching materials and equipment to the end that every single community will have people trained and certified in vital, newly-approved, life-support process.

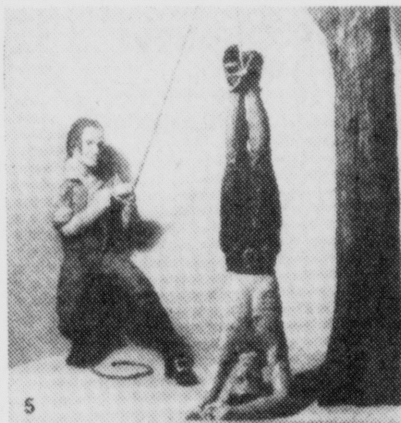

At present there are an Anatomical Anne and Resuscit-Baby available for student practice, but Heart hopes to purchase additional models. Depending on the number of simulated life-support systems each has, the lifelike "Annes" cost from $350 to $1800. Two old ones recently "died."

Classes are carefully limited in size so that individual attention can be given to each future instructor. Participants who are now certified and will soon set up courses for their local emergency and para-medical teams.

Mrs. William D. Brinnier, Executive Director of the local Heart Chapter, says it is her hope that eventually CPR will be a required course in all high schools and colleges — as it is in at least one major Midwest city — and that all police, fire and emergency personnel will undergo in this lifesaving technique.

"We would like to insure" Mrs. Brinnier added, "that wherever there is sudden heart arrest, some trained in CPR can save hearts that are too good to die."

CPR—CARDIOPULMONARY RESUSCITATION— AN ANCIENT ART

EARLY AGES-FLAGELLATION METHOD Inflicting pain by whipping with stinging nettles, later supplemented by striking the skin with the hands and wet clothes, was considered helpful in restoring those apparently in deep sleep.

EARLY AGES-HEAT METHOD Warm ashes, hot water, and burning of dried animal excreta applied to the abdomen of patients were thought to be of value in restoring heat and life to the cold body.

BELLOWS METHOD—1530 Paracelsus was first to use common fireside bellows to introduce air into the lungs of apparently dead persons. Adaptations of this method were used throughout Europe for 300 years.

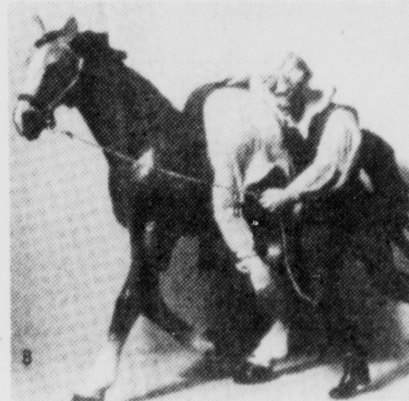

1711—FUMIGATION METHOD North American Indians attempted to revive apparently dead persons by blowing smoke into an animal bladder and therefrom into the victim's rectum. Called also "Dutch fumigation," it was introduced into England in 1767. The method was used successfully for years in American colonies.

1770—INVERSION METHOD This method was used in England, Europe, and America. Many cases of successful resuscitation from near-drowning are recorded. Pressure over chest aided in expelling air from lungs and inspiration resulted when pressure was removed.

1773—BARREL METHOD This method, probably used before 1767, may still be seen along the waterfront. Barrel movement forward released pressure on victim's chest, allowing inspiration. Movement of barrel back caused the body's weight to compress the chest, inducing expiration.

1803—RUSSIAN METHOD Persons unconscious from cold or fumes or apparently dead were successfully resuscitated by burial. A modification was to bury the victim upright with his head and chest exposed. Water was dashed on his face.

1812—TROTTER HORSE METHOD This was used on Europe's inland waterways for resuscitation from near-drownings. The victim's own body, contacting the horse, compressed his chest, forcing out air. When he was bounced from horse's back, his chest expanded and air entered his lungs.

1831—DALRYMPLE METHOD With a length of cloth encircling the chest, traction by two rescuers compressed the chest, forcing air from the lungs. Release of the pressure permitted the chest to expand, inducing inspiration.

1856—MARSHALL HALL METHOD This represents the first record of a victim laid prone, with chest elevated. The operator pulled the patient onto his side, held him momentarily, then let him roll back. Pressure on the back of the chest expelled air. Pressure was then released by turning the patient onto his side, causing inspiration.

1861—SYLVESTER METHOD With victim on his back, arms above head, lung capacity is greater for inspiration; the arms are carried forward, folded on chest, and pressed to produce expiration. The tongue is held to keep the air passage open. This method is still in use.

1871—HOWARD METHOD Pressure is exerted on the back of the prone victim, with his chest raised, to expel water. He is then turned onto his back, with the operator straddling and exerting pressure on the upper abdomen and lower chest, causing expiration. Releasing the pressure caused inspiration.

1886—J.B. FRANCIS METHOD Raising the victim by hyperextension of his body induces expiration; lowering him to the ground causes inspiration. This method is of little value, owing to the possibility of injury to the spine.

1903—SCHAFFER PRONE PRESSURE METHOD This simple method requires but one person. Pressure applied to the victim's back forces his abdomen against his diaphragm, compressing the lungs and causing expiration. Release of the pressure causes inspiration.

1894—PROCHOWNICK METHOD The inversion method is applied to a newborn baby. The pressure, created by squeezing the chest and by gravity, induces expiration; release of the chest compression lets air inflate the lungs for inspiration.

1916—ACKLEN METHOD The device was strapped over the lower thorax and upper abdomen; by manual operation, the muscular walls were lifted by vacuum suction for inspiration, when pressure was exerted manually, air was forced from the lungs for expiration.

1926—EISENMENGER METHOD Air is pumped from an electrically driven diaphragm pump into pressure (expiration) and suction (inspiration) vessels, causing, within the dome on the patient's body, alternating positive and negative pressure to induce respiration in a natural manner.

ONE-RESCUER CARDIOPULMONARY RESUSCITATION
The method for one-rescuer cardiopulmonary resuscitation as recommended in the standards given in this supplement.

Fish Clarifies Questionnaire Quote

WASHINGTON Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th) in response to a number of calls and letters from members of New York's Right to Life Committee concerning the question in the recent questionnaire he issued dealing with the Supreme Court's 1973 abortion decision, today issued the following clarifying statement. "A number of Right to Life Committee members have objected to the wording of question No. 10 in my recent questionnaire which stated: 'The Supreme Court has invalidated most state abortion laws and made legal any abortion by a licensed physician during the first three months of pregnancy.' "Although this is absolutely true, backers of Right to Life are also accurate in pointing out that this does not present the full picture," Fish said.

"In addition to this, the ruling also permits abortion on demand during the second trimester of pregnancy, but gives states the power to legislate conditions under which the abortion must be performed."

"Under the ruling it is only during the third trimester of pregnancy that states can legislate against or bar abortion." The Right to Life people are correct in stating that the Court's ruling allows abortion on demand during the first six months of pregnancy and bars states from legislating otherwise.

"Anyone who has not yet filled out and returned my 1975 Questionnaire should keep these facts in mind while filling out the question which deals with whether a Constitutional Amendment to overcome this Supreme Court ruling is needed.

"Certainly there was no intent to slant or weight this question in the preparation of the questionnaire," Fish said.

Fish issued his 1975 Questionnaire last week, mailing one to every household in the 25th Congressional District.

Senior Citizen Consultant

WASHINGTON Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th) is seeking applicants for the position of "congressional senior citizens consultant."

The senior citizen consultant will spend the next year acting as liaison between Gilman and senior citizens throughout the 26th Congressional District. The consultant will represent Gilman at meetings of senior citizens' groups, keep abreast of older citizens' problems and legislation and relay those problems, needs, and suggestions to the congressman.

For the past year, Mrs. Rue Kingsley of Goshen has served as Gilman's senior citizen consultant.

Appraisers To Study County

KINGSTON

Real estate appraisers for the New York State Board of Equalization and Assessments will be in Ulster County for the next several weeks doing a survey of various real properties, according to Jack Reynolds, director of Ulster County Real Property Tax Service Agency.

All appraisers carry proper identification and, if a person has any question as to the authenticity of the real estate appraiser, they may call the Ulster County Real Property Tax Service Agency.

The appraisal is not used for tax purposes on the property but it is used by the State of New York to figure an equalization rate for each city and town in Ulster County, Reynolds explained.

Degrees For Area Grads

I. WERBALOWSKY
KINGSTON

Iris Hara Werbalowsky of Kingston has graduated summa cum laude from SUNY at Oneonta with a BA in psychology and sociology.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Werbalowsky, after her June 22 marriage to Theodore A. Barten, plans to attend Boston University to pursue a MS degree in rehabilitation counseling. She has served as a volunteer at a sheltered workshop for mentally handicapped adults, and has conducted experimental research in attribution theory concerning the stigmatization of the mentally ill.

Four Ulster County residents were graduated from Hamilton College. Among the 207 graduates of the upstate college were: William H. Collier III, 30 Market Street, Ellenville; Vlad D. Hoyt, P.O. Box 13, Mt. Pleasant; Joseph C. Konen, R.D. 3, Kingston; and David D. W. Zimet, 42 Park Drive, Woodstock.

Ann Marie Manganiello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Manganiello of Ulster Park, received an Associate in Arts degree from Bennett College in Millbrook.

Paul D. Kwasnowski graduated from the Stockbridge School of Agriculture, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, with an associate degree in science. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kwasnowski of 342 Broadway.

Robert F. Schneller was awarded a BA degree in history from Columbia University. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schneller of Hurley.

William R. Bradley of West Hurley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bradley of Wildwood Road, has received his BA degree from Johns Hopkins University. He plans to attend medical school with hopes of practicing in upstate New York.

Steven E. Lupton of Hurley was among 500 graduating seniors from Ohio Wesleyan University, with a BA degree.

Stephen Ryan Jr. of Blue Mountain Road, Saugerties received a BA, and Robert D. Field of R.D. 2, Red Hook received a BS in mechanical engineering, cum laude, from Union College in Schenectady.

Cynthia C. Chua, a chemistry major, graduated from Mount Holyoke College. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Streamson T. Chua of Jeannetta Street, Lake Katrine.

Maria J. Aiello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony R. Aiello of Route 208, New Paltz has received an associate degree with honors from Dutchess Community College.

Leslie Rose Swertfager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lannon Swertfager of Hopewell Junction, completed requirements for a masters degree in recreation administration from Indian University. Her mother is the former Gwen Davis of Accord.

Kenneth D. Rowe of 62 Appletree Lane, Saugerties graduated from Butler University in Indianapolis with a BS degree in secondary education.

Michael W. Winne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Winne of 280 Washington Avenue, Kingston received a BA diploma from Hartwick College in Oneonta.

Two county residents graduated from Purdue University in Indiana. They are William Reid, 3 Park Street, Kingston and Robert Laird, 12 Village Drive, Saugerties, both with BS degrees.

Lawrence H. Benz, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Benz of 5 Sheryl Street, Kingston graduated from Dartmouth College in New Hampshire. He was director of instruction of the Cabin and Trail Division, Dartmouth Outing Club.

'Pictures Come to Life' In Bicentennial Art Exhibition by Howe

Some of Kingston's new and old buildings will be included in a Bicentennial Year exhibition during July at the Kingston Trust Company (The Bank) in its uptown office, 27 Main Street.

The exhibition will include approximately 40 beautiful watercolor works by Gurdon Howe, Woodstock realist.

"These pictures come to life," was one viewpoint after Howe sorted through some of his works for his month-long exhibition at the uptown banking institution. And that they do.

Howe, with 30 years of experience in watercolors, has had exhibits in Paris, Boston, New York City as well as being represented in the Smithsonian Institute, the Staten Island Museum and the private collections of J. Noel Macy in Washington and Dr. Malcolm Campbell in Albany.

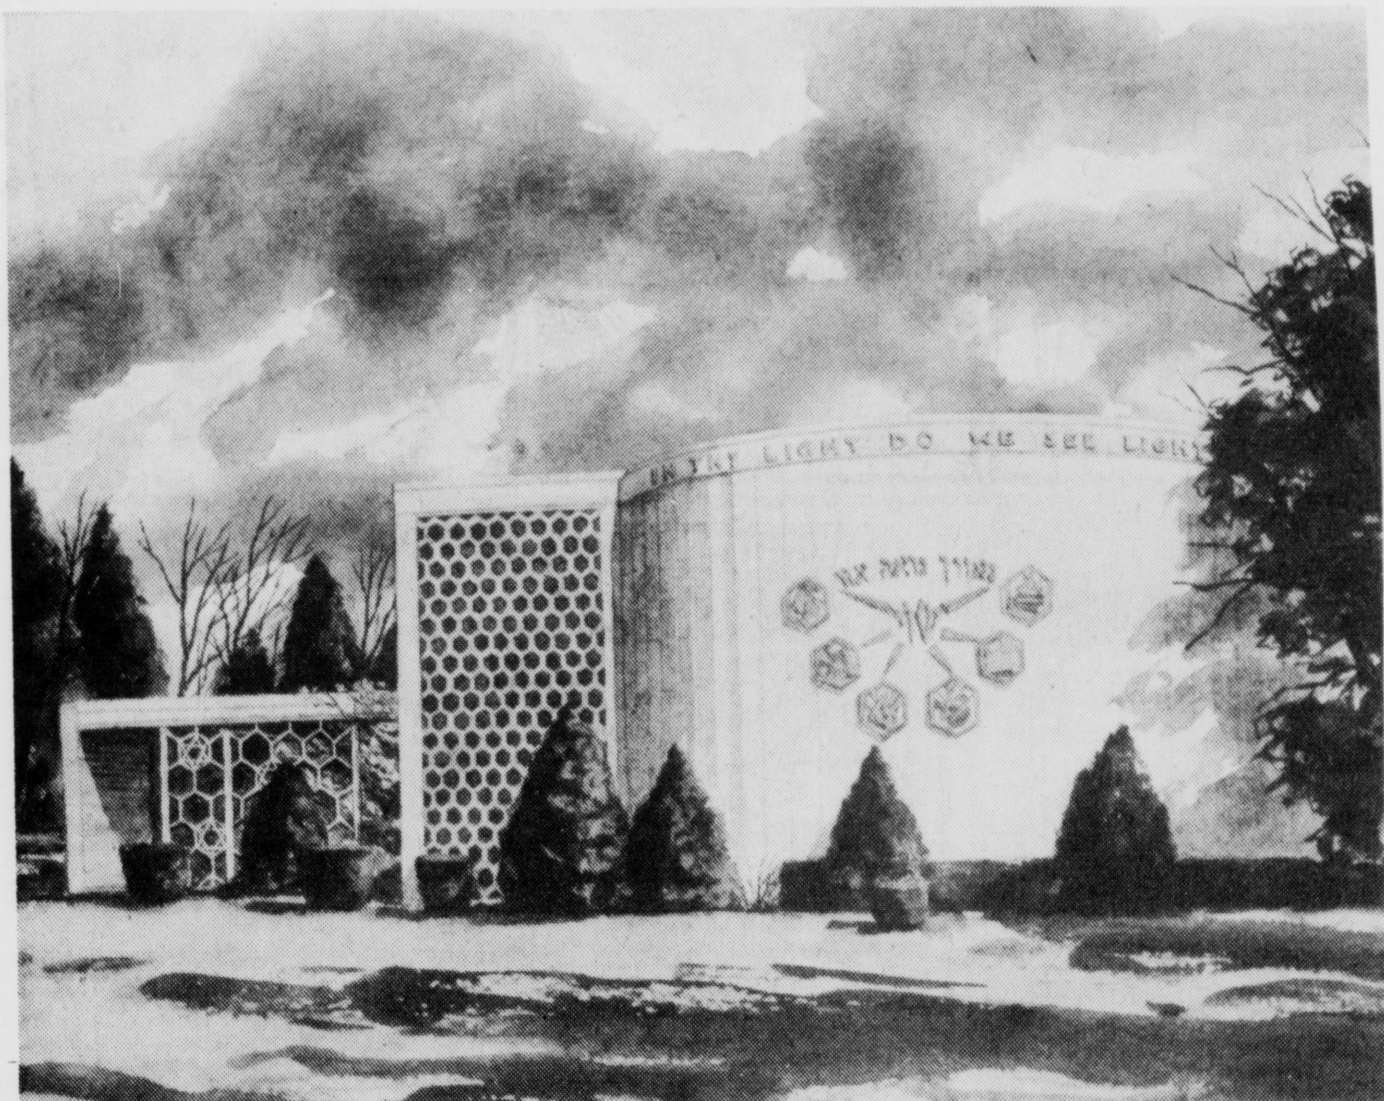

Something new and something old will be part of the Howe exhibit, commemorating Kingston's key role in the Revolutionary War days.

The new will include the imposing Temple Emanuel site on Albany Avenue as well as the John Pike Arcade along uptown Kingston's Wall and North Front Streets.

Howe's "old" watercolors will feature the Senate House, the famed Mary Powell, the Civil War Monument in front of the old city hall on Broadway as well as many of Kingston's stone houses and private gardens.

Art lovers and history buffs have an enjoyable and enriching experience waiting for them at the Trust Company offices during July.

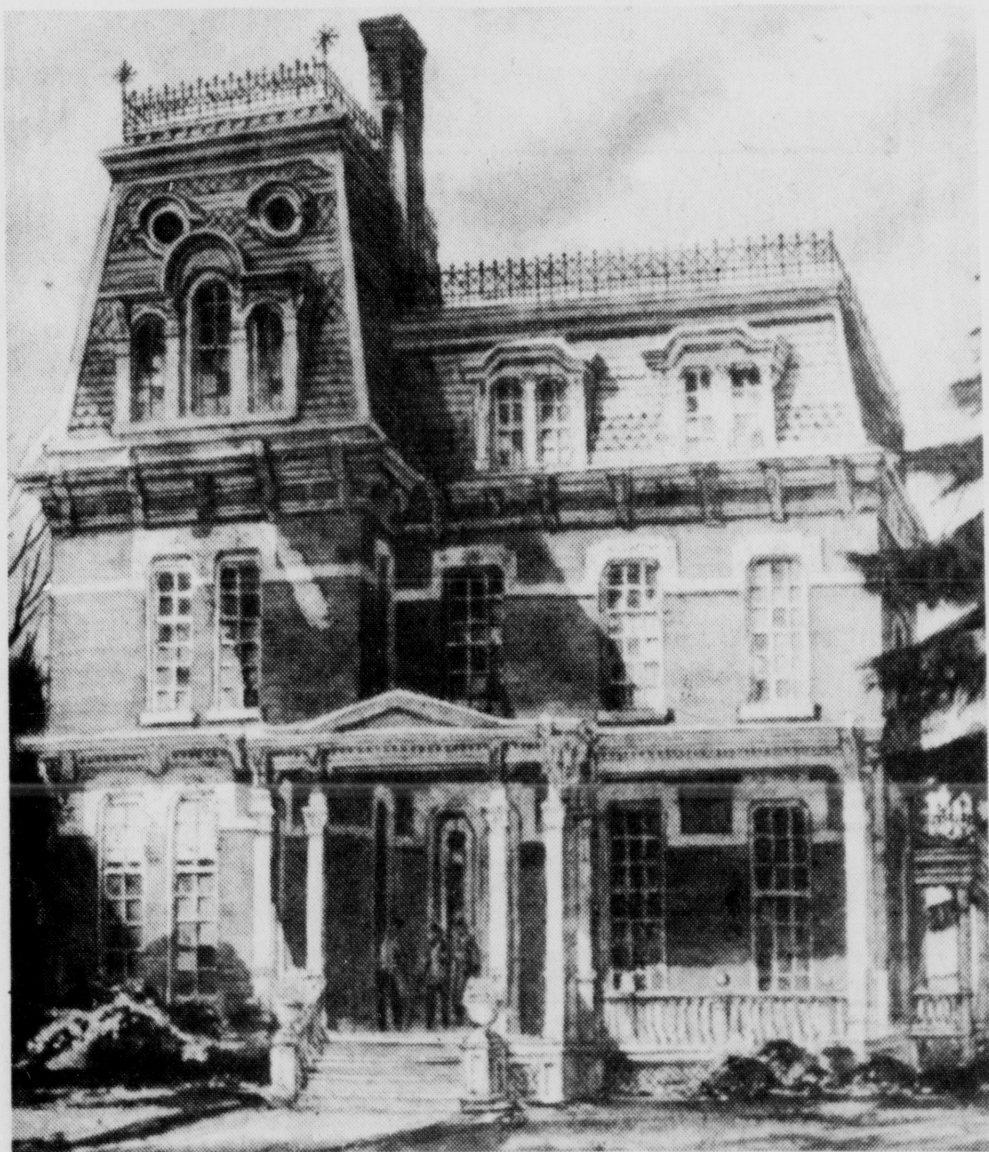

Howe's watercolors will be on display daily from 9 a.m. until 3 in the afternoon and Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Final, Formal Steps Taken for Formation of County Council for Arts

The final, formal steps have been taken for the formation of the Ulster County Council for the Arts.

At a recent meeting at the Ulster County Community College, the culmination of a year's work by a dedicated planning committee and the direct outgrowth of a widely publicized conference at State University College at New Paltz last February, was realized.

Full realization of the Ulster County Council for the Arts came with the election of an interim board of directors, the needs of the county explored in depth and suggestions for the fulfilling of these needs were detailed.

At the organizational meeting, the fledgling organization took its final formal steps toward reality with the passage of by-laws, followed by a lively discussion of priorities and goals — a continuation of the exchange of ideas that took place at the February conference.

The Council will be a service-type organization rather than one that sponsors productions and events. It will serve as an umbrella organization dedicated to the dissemination of information, the coordination of Ulster's cultural activities, and a general advocacy of all the arts.

Arthur Rashap, chairman of the temporary board of directors, expressed it this way: "There is no doubt in our minds that a service-type arts council is a desirable and much-needed entity in our county — a Council that will serve both the artists and art organizations, as well as the general public and the tourists who represent economic benefits to the entire community. The funding for the Council must in no way diminish the funding available to the individual artists or art organizations, but come from sources specially designed for such organizations."

Although gratefully accepting the hospitality and close cooperation of the county's colleges, the Council will maintain a separate entity. Following recommendations made at the February planning conference, the interim board of directors found donated office space in Kingston, the traditional center of the county, donated equipment and staffed it to maintain a central point of communication.

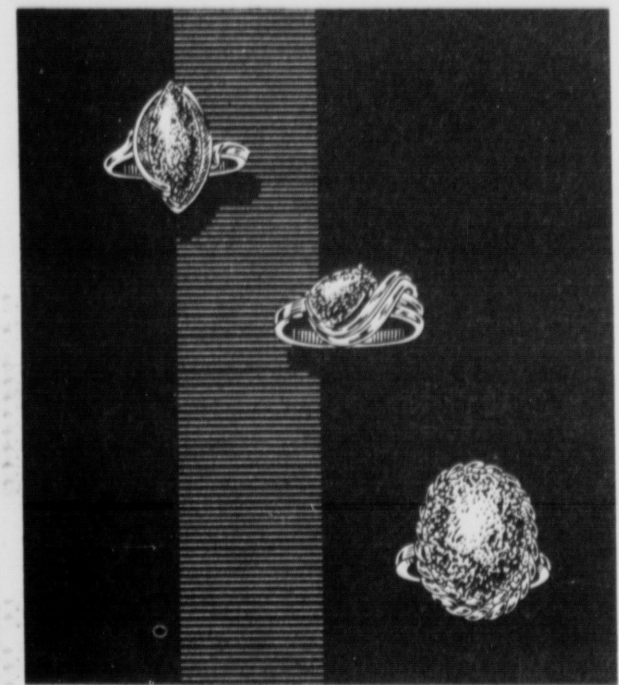

The interim board of directors reported that the Council has been legally established as a non-profit corporation, and is presently winding up a survey of the cultural resources of the county — the latter, a project funded by the National Endowment for the Arts. The first of a planned series of newsletters for the Arts was published just prior to this meeting, and plans for a County-wide Arts Festival to be held in the Spring or Summer of 1976 are under consideration.

In order to further accommodate the cultural richness of Ulster, the county's libraries and historical societies, as well as the junior Council members (individuals under 18) would each be represented by a director. Business, commerce, local government, and the professions will also have representation. In short, the by-laws mandate that the Ulster County Council for the Arts serve the entire Community, with every spectrum of those active in or interested in the arts represented.

The present interim directors, elected last February, were asked to continue until formal elections under the newly adopted by-laws could be held, and directed to expand itself with the appointment of two or three members of its own

Service-type organization rather than one that sponsors productions and events.

Business, commerce, local government, the professions will have representation, as well as libraries, historical societies, junior Council members.

Rosendale Seniors Pledge Fair Help

The Rosendale Senior Citizens, as their community project, have agreed to work with the Rosendale Library on plans for this year's fair scheduled August 9. The seniors will man a Booster Booth at the fair and in keeping with the bicentennial theme, will present small crocheted liberty bells to each person who becomes a library booster for a small donation. Town of Rosendale Supervisor Richard B. Glaser is pinned with one of the liberty bells by Marie Ackerman of the seniors. Lottie Burns also is shown. (Freeman photo)

Don Juan in Hell One of PAW's Finest Performances

By Tobie Geertsema

In the reading of a single Shavian scene, Performing Arts of Woodstock has produced one of its finest performances in its more than a decade of mounting theatrical stagings. The idea of excerpting one act, DON JUAN IN HELL, from George Bernard Shaw's four-act play, "Man and Superman," did not originate with PAW. It was performed first as a staged reading on Broadway in the 1951-52 season by such luminaries as Charles Laughton, Charles Boyer, Agnes Moorhead, and Cedrick Hardwicke. And revived there again in the 1972-73 season by such talents as Paul Henreid, Edward Mulhane, Ricardo Montalban, and Miss Moorhead again.

But, if the cycle did not begin with PAW, the Woodstock thespians have certainly made of it one of the group's worthiest endeavors. For Sara Mulligan is sparkling and totally alive as Dona Ana (in spite of the fact that she has just died at 77), and Paul Cooper has made the Commander a whimsical military man, while carefully refraining from turning him into a cartoon character. And when Jasper Oddo as the Devil, and

In the current PAW staging of the Shaw drama, director Paul Cooper and his cast of four have created full-bodied characterizations rather than a staged reading. And, because of this, it emerges as an evening that involves the audience in ideas and intellectual debate. And succeeds as diverting, instructive, dramatic entertainment.

To simply quote lines out of context does not do justice to this work. It is a play that requires concentrated listening. Still, a line or two of the Shavian doctrines exemplify the job of thought and the humor in "Don Juan." Laments Dona Ana on learning she is in hell, not heaven: "I might have been so much wickered . . . all my good deeds gone to waste!" And, says Don Juan to Ana, who continues to think of herself as a virtuous woman in spite of her onignment to that realm for the wicked: "Your chastity took the form of a husband and 12 children. What could have happened if you had been an abandoned woman?"

The performances in this PAW production are polished and professional. Paul Cooper's Commander is laced with the "Marriage is the most licentious of all human institutions — and that is the secret of its popularity"

"Your chastity took the form of a husband and 12 children. What could have happened if you had been an abandoned woman?"

Chet London, as Don Juan, cross intellectual blades, the 1903 script comes to life with intelligence, wit and dramatic urgency.

Shaw, often a prophetic playwright, also took great relish in debunking, among other things, love and heroism. In this particular script, he has chosen to debunk that romantic hero of folk legend, Don Juan, the Spanish lover of innumerable hacienda bedrooms. And, in debunking him, he converts him from a playboy womanizer to a man of supreme intellect. Shaw has turned Don Juan into a man of intellectual passion; a man for whom sex is simply part and parcel of creative thought. As Shaw sees him, he is more cerebral than physical and, had he been born in this century rather than his own, he would be spending more time in scientific research than between the sheets.

For, in DON JUAN IN HELL, the dream sequence from "Man and Superman," Shaw has the once romantic Juan, aided and abetted by the Devil (in a red turtleneck) attack such peddlers of romance as Mozart, Rembrandt, and Wagner. And attack, too, the symbols of romance ("Virtue is the trade unionism of marriage . . ."), and the culmination of romance ("Marriage is the most licentious of all human institutions — and that is the secret of its popularity . . .").

In teaming Sara Mulligan as Dona Ana and Chet London as Don Juan in its current revival of a scene from G. B. Shaw, Performing Arts of Woodstock has found the perfect stage combination.

Paul Cooper (L) has both directed PAW's production of "Don Juan in Hell," and assumed one of the leading roles in his portrayal of the Commander. With him in this scene is Jasper Oddo as the Devil.

Driftwood's Country Music Night

The Driftwood Floating Theatre has completed its bill for the first COUNTRY ON THE RIVER concert to be held Sunday night, June 29, starting at 9 o'clock. Joining the Country Cousins, in photo, will be the Country Skyline as well as special guest, Miss Cathy Lee. Promoter Steve Burke also reports that the Driftwood's popular candy hawker, comic Tom McGuire, will be on hand for Sunday's country gala with his sales, but also offering a different twist. Tickets are available at the box office at the Driftwood or at Abrams Music Store on Wall Street.

Antiwar Activist Pat Swinton to Speak

Politically controversial feminist antiwar activist Pat Swinton (Shoshana) will make a rare public appearance at the Woodstock Artists' Association on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. to talk about feminism and the left, under the auspices of the Woodstock Women's Center. Shoshana, arrested last March on a 1969 indictment charging her with conspiracy to bomb federal properties, faces a possible 30 years in prison. Jane Alpert, David Hughey, and Sam Melville (who was killed by state police during the Attica rebellion several years ago) were named co-conspirators in the same indictment. Shoshana is only one of many antiwar activists and feminists recently arrested by federal authorities or detained for questioning by secret grand juries now being set up in a number of American cities. All proceeds from the evening will go to the Pat Swinton (Shoshana) Defense Committee. Everyone is welcome.

Author Visits Anna Devine School

The children of Mrs. Minna Johnson's and Mrs. Linda Kiernan's fourth grade classes at Anna Devine School, Rifton, were treated to a talk by Marc B. Fried, author of "The Early History of Kingston and Ulster County, N.Y.," at the school library earlier this month. Mr. Fried gave his presentation on the Indians and early settlers of the Esopus area, and told some interesting facts about Rifton. After answering questions, Mr. Fried autographed the library's copy of his book.

Recent Birth

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Glennon of Franklin Avenue, Millbrook, are the parents of a son, Robert Joseph, born Wednesday, June 18, at the Sharon (Conn.) Hospital.

YW-Wives Elect Officers

The annual dinner meeting of Y-Wives Club of the YWCA was held earlier this month at Huguenot Manor in New Paltz. Re-elected for the coming year were president, Mrs. Fred A. Schoonmaker; vice-president, Mrs. William T. Devine; secretary, Mrs. William J. Schreiber, and treasurer, Mrs. William E. Barnes. Mrs. Schoonmaker was presented with a gift by the members. Executive committee members who served with Mrs. Schoonmaker were membership, Mrs. Robert P. Slover; hospitality, Mrs. Robert W. Hughes; service, Mrs. David A. Van Etten; cheer, Mrs. Francis M. Short, and publicity, Mrs. Herbert H. Reuner.

It was decided that the club name would be changed to YW-WIVES as it is felt that confusion has existed in the past as to the affiliation of Y-Wives. The addition of the W clearly identifies the club with the YWCA which is desirable to the membership, while still retaining a name that is well-known in YWCA and community circles. YW-Wives include service projects all year in their activities.

Club meetings will resume on September 18 with a covered dish supper at which time programs and projects for the year will be scheduled.

Prospective members are also invited to attend this meeting.

YWCA Bus Trips

Let's get away from it all! It's easy and inexpensive on a YWCA Day Tour. Take in everything from Liberate to the German Alps Festival at Hunter, with never a thought about parking spaces.

CIRCLE LINE BOAT TRIP AROUND MANHATTAN: Wednesday, July 2, 3-hour yacht trip around the city, with nature's own air-conditioning. Tour leaves YWCA at 8 a.m. Reservations deadline, June 29.

CAROL CHANNING in LORELEI, at the Coliseum in Latham: Sunday, July 20. Call the YWCA about departure information. Reservations IMMEDIATELY.

LIBERACE AT

SARATOGA: Sunday, Aug. 3. This one's always a swift sell-out, so make your reservations early.

HUNTER MOUNTAIN GERMAN ALPS FESTIVAL: Friday, August 8. "Gemutlichkeit" for sure... music, dancing, craftsmen, shows... something for all ages. Brochures are available at the YWCA desk. Reservations by Aug. 5.

SARATOGA RACES: Thursday, Aug. 21. Bus leaves one-half hour after last race. Reservations due by Aug. 18.

Further information on all these bus trips is available at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, in Kingston or call the Y.

Dairy Princess Seminar Planned

More than 200 dairy princesses, alternates, dairy maids and local milk promotion leaders from 47 counties in New York State will attend the 1975 Dairy Princess and County Milk Promotion Seminar sponsored by American Dairy Association & Dairy Council of New York (ADA & DCNY) at Cazenovia College, Cazenovia.

June 26 and 27. Holly Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Davis of Kerhonkson, is 1975 Dairy Princess of Ulster County.

The program is designed to familiarize newly crowned princesses with materials available to help them represent the dairy industry.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
1975 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

By Abigail Van Buren
1975 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe that I am actually writing a Dear Abby letter, but I need to know how to solve a thorny problem.

I have an acquaintance of many years who teaches high school. He is male and unmarried, and he spends his summers traveling around the country (and, indeed, the world), freeloading on his friends.

He writes to say he'll be in the neighborhood, and asks whether he may "visit" for a few days. Then he moves in and stays a week or longer if he can get away with it. He's wine and dined, and he never, never reciprocates. In fact, when he is out for dinner, he always finds an excuse to get so deeply involved in conversation with someone at the table that the check could lay there collecting moss before he'd pick it up.

He is on his way here, then he's visiting a mutual friend and after that, another mutual friend. They don't know his game, but I do. Should I wise them up? And how would you suggest I treat this man?

JUST WONDERING
DEAR JUST: Don't wise up anyone. And treat him like you'd treat any other freeloader. No one can take advantage of you without your cooperation.

DEAR ABBY: The "Saint" from St. Louis who declined to meet the topless dancer reminded me of an incident in my own life.

My late husband, a police detective, called one day to inform me that he was bringing a couple home for dinner. I found them to be charming, intelligent and good company.

After they left, my husband told me that she was a "madame" and he was a pimp! Some time later they were married. She quit her profession and so did he. Subsequently, we became very good friends.

When my husband's illness was diagnosed as terminal, the former pimp was the only friend who offered to finance a trip to the Mayo Clinic in the hope that it could save him.

I suggest that Mrs. "Saint" overcome her bias. She may find a fine friend in the topless dancer. Who are we to judge? POLICEMAN'S WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: Amen. Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a person-

HVP Book Sale

The last Saturday of the month is just around the corner and it is an important date for the bookworms of Kingston and its vicinity.

The booksale for the benefit of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic will be held on June 28 at 254 Albany Avenue, Kingston. The door will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

All the different sections are well stocked. They are: Fiction, Mysteries, Science, History, Biography, Mathematics and Religion. Some shelves are reserved for children and the young readers.

Many regular booksale customers bring back books they do not wish to keep, especially paperback fictions and mysteries. These books can then be recycled through the cash register sales.

All work connected with this booksale is done by voluntary workers. Full benefits go to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic.

Band Concert Slated This Evening

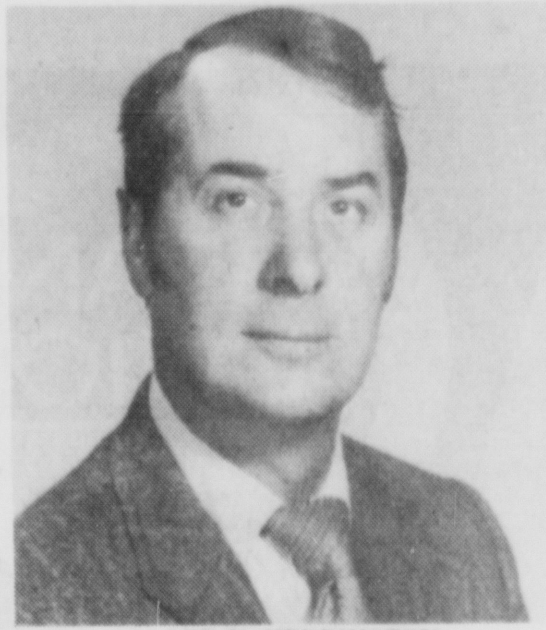

al reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

A band concert, co-sponsored by the City of Kingston and American Federation of Musicians Performance Trust Fund, Local No. 215, is set for this evening at 7:30 o'clock at Academy Green Park in Kingston. Tonight's concert will be the first in a series of 10 concerts. Rain date will be Thursday night.

Lee E. Harrington, teacher and district music coordinator at Rondout Valley School, will direct. Harrington has performed with the group for 15 years on a variety of instruments including oboe, flute, clarinet, baritone sax, baritone horn and French horn. He served as assistant conductor for three years and conductor for two years. Harrington has been guest conductor of bands in several counties and served as solo adjudicator at state competition festivals. At present, he is serving an elected position on the New York State School Music Association Executive Council. A native Kingstonian, he holds BS and MS degrees from Ithaca College School of Music. This evening's program will include works by John P. Sousa, Rossini, Erickson, Glenn Osser, Moffitt and others. Selections will be "The Thunderer," "Patriotic Finale," "William Tell Overture," "Balladair," "Hello, My Baby," "Hey, Look Me Over," "High School Cadets," "American Marching Song," "Walt Disney Overture," "Carnival of Venice," "Beer Barrel Polka," "Beguine for Band," "America the Beautiful," and selections from "Oliver." Baritone soloist is Tom Keehn.

The program of live music is free and open to the public.

Two Bennett School Faculty Members Retire

Two members of the faculty of the Reginald R. Bennett School, Boiceville, Mrs. Irene Frost and Miss Virginia Slavik, retired at the end of the current school year.

Mrs. Irene Frost has spent 45 years in public education. She received her BA degree from Adelphi College and has done additional work at Hunter College and State Teachers College, Oneonta. Before coming to the Oneonta district, Mrs. Frost taught for the New York City Board of Education. During that time she was a teacher of grades one through eight.

Other duties while in New York City, included coordinator of the annual May Day Dance in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, teacher of day classes for adults, principal of an Evening Elementary School, editor of the adult student news and co-sponsor of the annual adult education trip to Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Frost began teaching at Oneonta at the central school in Boiceville. She transferred to the Bennett School when it opened in 1960. She has taught grades one and two during that time and in addition founded Nibs and Notes, the annual elementary school magazine, was advisor to the Bennett Banner newspaper and advisor to the Folk Dance Club.

Mrs. Frost was honored by the PTA in 1972 when the organization presented her with the Jenkins Memorial Award for her outstanding contributions to children and youth in the Oneonta community.

Miss Virginia Slavik came to Oneonta in 1958, as a teacher of classes for educable mentally retarded students. She worked originally at the West Hurley School and later transferred to the Bennett School. Prior to coming to Oneonta, Miss Slavik worked for one year for Ulster County BOCES and for 11 years at the North Jersey Training School for Girls at Totowa, N.J.

Miss Slavik holds a Bachelors degree from Douglas College for Women at Rutgers and a Masters degree in Special Education from Teachers College, Columbia University.

An avid gardener, Miss Slavik also has a keen interest in animals, wildlife and conservation. She is also quite interested in astrology.

In 1970 Miss Slavik was presented with the Jenkins Memorial Award by the Bennett School PTA in recognition of her outstanding service to children and youth in the Oneonta community.

Mrs. Frost and Miss Slavik were honored by their colleagues and friends at a retirement dinner at the Lake Mohonk Mountain House earlier this month. Entertainment for the occasion was provided by the music teachers at Bennett School.

Growing Older

By Lou Cottin

There's a world of difference between "aging" and "being old." We start aging the minute we're born. "Old" is an unpleasant, highly unpopular state that we bring on ourselves.

Some make it by the time they're 30. Quite a few never get around to it at all.

In our society, attitudes toward the old range from a condescending, "Tsk, tsk" to a rude, "Don't butt in!" They say, "old woman" and they mean "old biddy." They say "old man" and they mean "old fool."

Luckily, it's easy to know if you're either. Score six points for every comment where the shoe fits. Any total over 60 points makes you an old fuddy-duddy.

1. You're old if someone asks you how you feel and you tell them.

2. You're an old woman if you stop using cosmetics except for company.

3. You're an old man if you don't shave as often as you did when you went to work every day.

4. You're old if you've stopped reading the editorials in the newspaper.

5. You're old if you think the good old days were good old days.

6. You're old if you begin conversations, "When I was your age..." or "In my day..."

7. You're old if Watergate doesn't make you mad.

8. You're an old man if you prefer to study the restaurant menu rather than the pretty girl at the next table.

9. You're old if you tell people about how sick you are, very old if you're proud of it and decrepit if you use your sickness to gain sympathy.

10. You're old if you "never go out any more" — if holidays or weekends are no different from weekdays.

11. You're old if you don't get mad about the prevalence of evil in the world.

12. You're old if you think black people are asking too much equality too soon.

13. You're old if you hate young men with beards and long hair and young girls in mod clothes.

14. You're old if you expect respect just because you worked so hard all your life. A wife may score a husband or vice versa but we don't commend it. There's enough war in the world.

This column is open to anyone over 50 who wants to add his own "You're Old Its" to be used sometime in a future collection.

Yankees and Catfish Make It to Top of AL East

By UPI

The New York Yankees and Jim Hunter finally have made it to the top of the American League's Eastern Division—together.

That's the way the Yankees had it figured when they signed Hunter to a record $2.8-million five-year contract—that he would lead them to the promised land—just as he had contributed three 20-victory seasons to the Oakland A's three consecutive world championships.

If you believe in omens, the Yankees' plans will work out because they took over first place in the AL East Tuesday night when Hunter pitched a four-hitter to beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-1. The victory raised Hunter's record to 11-6 compared to the 10-8 mark he had for the A's a year ago at this time.

The Yankees took over first place with a combination of their victory over the Orioles and the Cleveland Indians' 8-6 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. It marked the first time this season the Yankees have occupied the top spot in their division.

New York, which has been hobbled by injuries and hasn't had its "varsity" on the field in weeks, scored its fourth straight win behind Hunter. Terry Whitfield drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly and Graig Nettles singled in the other. Ken Singleton homered for the Orioles in the first inning.

George Hendrick's second homer of the game, a three-run drive in the ninth inning, lifted the Indians to their triumph over the Red Sox. The Red Sox snapped a 4-4 tie in the bottom of the eighth on Carl Yastrzemski's two-run homer but the Indians chased Bill Lee in the ninth. Hendrick's homers were his 13th and 14th of the season.

The Oakland A's defeated the Minnesota Twins 6-4, the Kansas City Royals beat the California Angels 5-3 in 11 innings.

the Milwaukee Brewers swept a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers 5-0 and 4-2 and the Chicago White Sox topped the Texas Rangers 7-5 in other AL games.

A's 6, Twins 4

The A's scored their ninth victory in 10 games with the help of Jim Todd's 4 1-3 innings of closeout relief. Oakland scored four runs in the first inning on four walks, a single by Sal Bando and Billy Williams' sacrifice fly as it knocked out Joe Decker for the third straight time in the first inning. Gene Tenace homered for the A's.

Royals 5, Angels 3

Hal McKee singled in one run and John Mayberry knocked in another with a sacrifice fly as the Royals snapped a 3-3 tie in the top of the 11th inning. Doug Bird, who pitched the last four innings for the Royals, received credit for his fifth win against two losses. Mickey Scott was the loser.

Brewers 5-4, Tigers 0-2

Jim Slaton pitched a three-hitter for his second straight shutout and Bill Sharp drove in two runs with a pair of singles in the first game. George Scott tied the score with a homer in the sixth inning and then broke a 2-2 tie with a two-run, bases-filled single in the seventh as the Brewers completed their sweep. Bill Travers pitched an eight-hitter for his third win in the nightcap.

White Sox 7, Rangers 5

Jorge Orta drove in four runs with a two-run homer, a single and a sacrifice fly to help the White Sox. Claude Osteen scored his second victory in eight decisions. Bill Melton had three hits for the White Sox while Tom Grieve and Cesar Tovar had three each for the Rangers.

SPORTS TODAY

'I Didn't Want To Hurt Anybody'

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter's seventh complete game and the New York Yankees' ascent into first place in the American League East were overshadowed Tuesday night by a brushback-related dispute between Yankee catcher Thurman Munson and Baltimore pitcher Mike Torrez.

The Yankees, getting two runs batted in from rookie Terry Whitfield, whipped the Orioles, 3-1, for their fourth win in a row and their 11th in 15 games. But Munson's enraged charge toward Torrez in the eighth inning after grounding out got most of the attention.

"He said something to me just as I was getting into the batting box," said Munson, who was hit by a Torrez pitch in the second inning. "I don't know what he said, but it was the wrong time to say it and charging him seemed like the right thing to do. But I didn't want to hurt anybody."

Munson was stopped before he hit Torrez, but his irate charge precipitated a free-for-all involving both benches.

"He said he was going to charge the mound if I threw the ball inside to him," Torrez said. "He should know the type of pitcher I am. I'm not going to change pitching my type of game to please him."

Hunter hit two Orioles with pitches in the game—Elrod Hendricks in the second inning and Bobby Grich in the seventh.

"I suppose he threw at me," said Grich, who was hit with two out and nobody on. "I can understand an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. But why two teeth for one tooth?"

Ken Singleton led off with a home run to give Baltimore an early lead, but Hunter (11-6) was in complete control until Tommy Davis and Jim Northrup touched him for singles with one out in the ninth.

Hunter then retired Grich on a fly ball and Brooks Robinson on a popout, ending the game.

Base-Brawl

Yankee teammates pour onto field in eighth inning Tuesday night to restrain Thurman Munson (15) and keep him from attacking Baltimore pitcher Mike Torrez (third from right). The fracas started with a series of "brushback" pitches by hurlers from both teams. (UPI)

Philadelphia 'Whiz Kids' Are Back

By UPI

The "Whiz Kids" are back.

That colorful nickname, given to the 1950 Philadelphia Phillies' club which won the National League pennant, symbolized the exuberance and youth of that surprising team and the label appears to be applicable to this year's version of the Phillies as well.

It certainly was Tuesday night as a couple of 21-year-old pitchers named Larry Christenson and Tom Underwood brought back memories of Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons by hurling the Phillies to a 6-3 and 8-1 doubleheader sweep of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The twin victory enabled the Phillies to move within two games of the division-leading Pirates in the National League East.

Christenson, a 6-foot-4, 210-pound right-hander with a blazing fastball, allowed the heavy-hitting Pirates only six hits in seven innings of work in the opener before giving way to reliever Tug McGraw after rain delayed the game for 59 minutes. Christenson has won two of three decisions since being recalled from the minors.

"The heat was really something," Christenson said. "I changed my shirt after every inning. I've reached the point now where I'm going to throw as hard as I can, no matter how hot it is or how good a team I'm facing."

Mike Schmidt and Ollie Brown each doubled during a three-run sixth inning which enabled the Phillies to take a 4-2 lead. The Phillies added two more runs in the eighth on run-scoring singles by Jerry Martin and Mike Anderson. Underwood was stingier than Christenson in the nightcap, allowing only five hits while posting his eighth triumph in 13 decisions. Underwood, a 5-11, 170-pound left-hander who earned a place on the roster with an impressive show in spring training, said his fastball behaved differently than it normally does.

"The fastball wasn't jumping tonight as it usually does," he said. "Maybe it was the heat or something, but it was sinking."

Underwood was staked to a four-run first inning lead as the Phillies knocked out Bruce Kison. Kison faced only five batters, walking four and giving up a two-run single to Greg Luzinski. Third baseman Richie Hebner booted Mike Schmidt's grounder to let in the third run and Underwood singled home the final run of the inning.

Bob Robertson accounted for Pittsburgh's only run of the second game with his second homer of the season.

In other National League games, Cincinnati blanked Atlanta 3-0, New York defeated St. Louis 5-1, Los Angeles topped Houston 8-3, Chicago routed Montreal 13-6 and San Diego swept San Francisco 2-1 in 10 innings and 3-0.

Reds 3, Braves 0

Joe Morgan's three-run homer in the third inning carried the Reds to victory over the Braves. Pat Darcy, Fred Norman and Pedro Borbon combined on a six-hitter for Cincinnati.

Dodgers 8, Astros 3

Steve Garvey hit a three-run homer and Ron Cey followed with a solo blast in the first inning to trigger the Dodgers' victory over the Astros. Doug Rau pitched a six-hitter in going the distance for Los Angeles and also collected three hits. Doug Rader hit a pair of homers for Houston.

Cubs 13, Expos 6

Tim Hosley sparked a 15-hit attack with three singles and drove in three runs as the Cubs spoiled Montreal's celebration of St. John Baptist Day, Quebec's national holiday. Bill Bonham worked six innings to receive credit for the victory and also chipped in with a two-run triple.

Padres 2-3, Giants 1-0

An error by second baseman Derrell Thomas on Tito Fuentes' grounder enabled Enzo Hernandez to score the winning run with one out in the 10th inning and give the Padres the first game over the Giants. Randy Jones went all the way for San Diego to gain his 10th victory in 14 decisions and Bobby Murcer homered for San Francisco. In the nightcap, Brent Strom tossed a two-hitter and Willie McCovey homered.

Nets' Ladner Killed In Kennedy Crash

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wendell Ladner, the veteran New York Nets forward who sported a handlebar mustache and a reckless approach to the game of basketball, was among 109 passengers who died in the crash of an Eastern Airlines jetliner Tuesday.

Ladner was returning to New York from a two-week vacation at his parents' home in Nacaise Crossing, Miss., not far from New Orleans, when the Boeing 727 crashed attempting to land at John F. Kennedy International Airport.

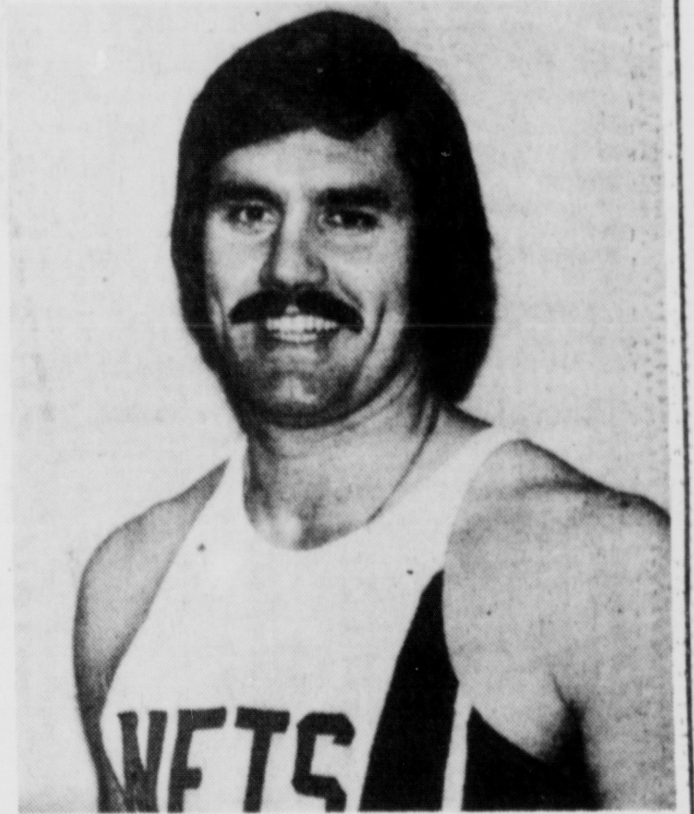

Although positive identification of the body will not be made at least until today, there was no doubt Ladner was among the victims. A body was found wearing an American Basketball Association championship ring, and his Nets traveling bag, with his number 4 embossed on it, was among the rubble of Eastern's flight 66 from New Orleans to New York.

Both Ladner's father, Aaron Ladner, and his coach, Kevin Loughery, confirmed that the 6-foot-5, 220-pound, five-year player was on the plane.

"I was watching the six o'clock news and when they said that there was a New York Nets gym bag found in the wreckage, I was in shock," said Loughery. "I knew that Wendell was in the New Orleans area."

The death is especially tragic to Nets fans who knew Ladner, 26, a twice-divorced bachelor, as a man who lived with considerable gusto, both on and off the court. The muscular brawler still is remembered for the time when he dived out of bounds after a loose ball and collided with a water cooler, returning to the game just eight minutes later with 36 stitches.

New York acquired him from

the Kentucky Colonels during the 1973-74 season along with Mike Gale in a trade for John Roche. The trade turned out to be a key to the Nets' ABA championship that year as Ladner's rough defensive play and surprisingly effective outside shooting played a key role in the stretch drive.

A native Mississippian, Ladner starred at the University of Southern Mississippi before being drafted on the fifth round by Memphis of the ABA in 1970. He made the league's all-rookie team that season.

Traded to Carolina midway through his second season, he was traded right back to Memphis for the last 15 games of that year. He was traded again in 1973 to Kentucky and finally in 1974 to New York.

Though not a high scorer in recent seasons, Ladner averaged 17 points per game through his first two seasons with Memphis and played in the ABA All-Star game in 1971 and 1972.

"We were really going to count on him this year," said Nets owner Roy Boe at his Connecticut home. "He tore up his leg last year, but he'd been running every day and was in great shape."

Ladner had decided to return to New York earlier than expected to continue his training program for a strong comeback year.

"I saw him just before he went down to Mississippi and he looked like he was in the best shape of his life," said Loughery. "I never saw him look better."

Drought Ends for Mets, Kooz

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets finally scored a run, and so Jerry Koosman finally earned the 100th victory of his major league career.

Koosman, now 6-5 this season, had tried three times previously for No. 100. He got it on a five-hit pitching performance, the Mets beating the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 Tuesday night to snap a seven-game losing streak and a 35-inning scoreless string.

Dave Kingman made the major contribution to New York on offense, hammering his 10th home run of the season following a leadoff double by Joe Torre in the fourth inning. Kingman's home run, off St. Louis starter John Curtis, cleared the rear wall of the Cardinals' bullpen in leftfield, 428 feet from home plate.

The Mets, shut out twice by the Cardinals on Monday night, got their first run in the first inning. Gene Clines singled, stole second and, following an infield groundout, scored when leftfielder Lou Brock misplayed Jesus Alou's line drive into a two-base error.

New York scored its final two runs in the seventh. Del Unser led off with a single, went to second on Koosman's sacrifice and scored on a single by Clines. Clines advanced to third on Felix Millan's hit-and-run single and scored on Alou's grounder to first.

Koosman held the Cardinals hitless for the first 4 2-3 innings and had them shut out until the eighth. But Mike Tyson led off the eighth with a bloop double to left and came around to score on two infield outs, the second by Ted Sizemore.

Pitching his fifth complete game of the season, Koosman fanned seven and walked one.

Hofheinz Empire Crumbling

JUDGE HOFHEINZ

HOUSTON (UPI) — Crushing debts of $38 million have forced Judge Roy Hofheinz to give up part of his control of the Astrodome and his entertainment empire, officials say.

Ford Motor Credit Corp., one of the major lenders to the Astrodome Corp., plans to commit several more millions in operating funds to help the debt-laden Hofheinz, a Ford spokesman said Tuesday.

Ford, General Electric Credit Corp., and the HNC Realty hold mortgage notes for $38 million and have been assigned authority to run the sprawling complex, the Houston Chronicle reported in a copyrighted story.

Astrodome executive vice-president Sidney Schlenker said Tuesday he, Hofheinz and Astrodome president T.H. Neyland have been named by the creditors to run the operation.

"We are in the process of completing a rearrangement of our long-term credit with major lenders which will greatly increase the viability of our company to operate in an efficient manner," Schlenker said.

The Chronicle reported Hofheinz lost control of the empire.

"The part of the Chronicle story relating to Judge Roy Hofheinz losing control is not true," Schlenker said. "The judge will retain the title of chairman of the board and will continue to be active as he has been in the past two years."

Hofheinz, 63, owned 50 per cent of the Astrodome Corp., and the other 50 per cent was left in trust for the three Hofheinz children. The children, Roy Jr., a Harvard professor, Dene, of Los Angeles, and Fred, current mayor of Houston, reportedly met in family council more than a week ago and agreed to relinquish control of their holdings, the Chronicle said.

Hofheinz, who created the Astrodome because he wanted a colosseum to rival that of ancient Rome, suffered a stroke in 1970 and has been confined to a wheelchair since.

Included in the action beside the Astrodome are the Houston Astros baseball team, four luxury hotels and the Astroworld Amusement park. The amusement park has been transferred under a long-term lease agreement to the corporation which runs the Six Flags amusement parks.

Schlenker said some of the corporation's assets, including 302 acres of undeveloped land, are available for sale. But, he said, speculation the Astros might be sold and moved, was unfounded. The 40-year lease agreement on the Astrodome, which was built with county funds, stipulates a major league baseball team must use it as a home park.

Everything Went Right For Byron Bertram

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — It was the kind of day all tennis players dream about but few achieve. It came true as the evening shadows were beginning to close in on the Wimbledon tennis championships Tuesday for Byron Bertram, a 22-year-old South African who lives in Chicago.

On the other side of the net was Stan Smith, the seventh seed and second ranking American. That didn't matter. When the magic touches the racket it doesn't matter who the opponent is or that you are ranked only sixth in your own country and unseeded here.

Everything goes right. Big Stan drilled over his famous serve and Bertram drilled it right back with forehand or backhand for placement winners. Smith tried every shot in the book and few of them worked. Bertram chopped, sliced, vollied and half-vollied, smashed, and everything worked.

As he came sadly off court after little more than an hour Smith explained his crushing, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1, defeat in simple words.

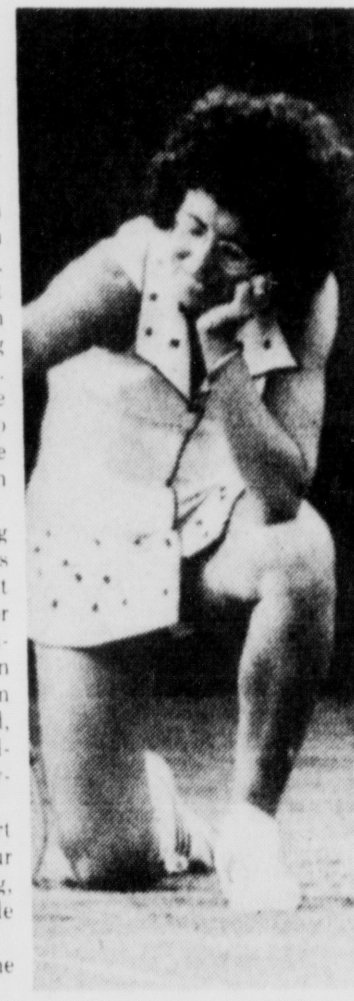

"He played very well," he said.

The other players watching from the clubhouse were impressed by Bertram but not overwhelmed.

"He may never play like that again," one of them said. Bertram agreed it was an exceptional game.

"It's the best I've ever played in my life," he said. He said he has played only eight tournaments this year because of an operation on his serving arm.

"Everything I hit seemed to come off. It was one of those freak matches when everything goes well. I was pretty confident though I never really expected to win."

BILLIE JEAN KING . . . hams it up

Smith and Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y., the 11th seed, are the only seeds eliminated thus far in the 98th year of this blue ribbon grass court classic.

Second-seeded Arthur Ashe advanced with a four-set victory over South African Bob Hewitt.

In a voice as flat as her forehead, Chris Evert, went through the ritual post-match recital Tuesday of how she had demolished a nervous Australian girl in opening her defense of her singles title.

She regretted that hapless Chris O'Neil had failed to provide her with opportunities to show she can now also play from the net, her illness last week had not affected her game, she was glad her father and coach, Jimmy, had come to watch her play at this birthplace of tournament tennis for the first time.

Then her voice picked up a more vibrant tone. There was, she said, one ambition she was nursing and this Wimbledon was perhaps her last chance to achieve it.

"I've never beaten Billie Jean King on grass," she said, "and she's kind of retiring from the game."

That means she must beat Billie Jean on grass now or never.

A display of animation by the serious young lady from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., is something of a rarity during the tennis season. But it shows that even in a competition with $268,000 at stake the professionals are not always motivated by gold alone.

The trouble with Miss Evert's ambition is that Billie Jean King has no intention of losing to her here. Mrs. King has her own goal—to break the Wimbledon record of total victories. To do that she needs two more titles. She was impressive in her opening match Tuesday—a 6-1, 6-4 win over South Africa's Elizabeth Votman.

Three Tie In Sawyerkill NEPGA

SAUGERTIES
Ron Philo of the Redwoods Golf Center, Pat Palmeri of Pine Brook Country Club and Lou Merkle of the Antlers Country Club all fired one-over-par 73s Monday at the Sawyerkill Country Club to share individual honors in the Northeastern New York PGA's open pro-am.

Philo and Palmeri had identical rounds of 36, 37, and Merkle carded a 39, 34 to hold off host Bud Cordore by one shot. Cordore missed a piece of the lead when he bounced a putt out of the cup on the 18th hole.

"I didn't choke," said the personable Sawyerkill professional. "I thought I had it, but it hit the back of the cup and stayed up."

Cordore had a two-shot lead with a fine 34 on the front side, but five three-putt greens did him in for the day as he took a 40 coming home.

A total of 19 pros brought teams to the tournament. Merkle's foursome of Pete Hasner, Bob Golden and Andy Jackson won the low gross prize with a two-ball 141 total. Barry Vavrinek of Sycamore, playing with Mike Scambellone, Chuck Sgroi and Jay Plumber, took the low net division with 142-15, 127.

A couple of local pros also enjoyed good rounds to tie for the ninth spot. Jim Hutchins of Woodstock, on the road back from an injury, carded 38, 41-79, and the unstoppable Alex Gerlak of Twaalfskil had 39, 40-79.

Charles Conrad of Shaker Ridge shot 37, 39, and Bob Haggerty of Schenectady Muni scored 38, 37 to tie for the fifth position at 75. Stew Smith of Edison was alone at 39, 37-76, and Jim Murray of Amsterdam fired 41, 37-78.

Philo, with partners Carl Fuerst, Zig Goscinski and Walt Hayes, and Smith, with Pete Fischer, Bob McCaig and Tom Giacchini, tied for the runnerup spot in the low gross division at 142.

Pleasantview's Bill Gressick headed the second place low net team of Joe Benjamin, Bob Schmillinger and Larry Thornton to a 152-24, 128.

Sires Stakes Back at Raceway

MONTICELLO
The New York Sires Stakes opened its annual run at Monticello Raceway Tuesday night with three divisions of three-year-old trotting fillies going for purses of over $45,000.

Kenwood Nana, Tyrolean Jewel, and Christmas Deal took the opening night divisions.

Jim Grundy drove Kenwood Nana in a come-from-behind victory over Kewpie Barmin in 2:00.2. The filly, by Greg, had the pole in a field of eight, paying $5.80, $4.20, and $3.20. Jack's Sister was the show filmer.

With Billy Myer in the sulky, Tyrolean Jewel grabbed the lead approaching the final quarter and posted a 2:0

YOGI (L), DALE

Milton Richman

Another Berra In Pro Baseball

NEW YORK (UPI) — There comes a time when every father feels he has to have one of those heart-to-heart talks with his son, and in the case of Papa Yogi Berra, what better time could there possibly be than right now?

Dale Berra was having his breakfast. This would be his last one in the family kitchen at Montclair, N.J., before he'd be off to seek fame, fortune and whatever else there was waiting for him out there in the cold, cold world.

Eighteen-year-old Dale Berra was preparing to do the same thing his father did when he was 18. He was getting ready to leave home for the first time so he could play professional baseball with the Niagara Falls Pirates in the Class A New York-Penn League.

His father, Yogi, 50-year-old manager of the New York Mets and a Hall of Famer, watched his youngest son make a few tentative stabs at the eggs his mother, Carmen, had set in front of him. Dale Berra wasn't very hungry Friday morning. He was thinking about what lies ahead of him, about how much different playing pro ball would be from playing in high school where he had just finished hitting .520.

"This isn't gonna be at all like what you've been used to in high school," Yogi told his youngest son. "You only played once or twice a week there, but now you're gonna have to play every day. Don't press, don't worry. Don't get the redneck if you go on-for-four one day. You always have the next day to redeem yourself. Make sure you get your rest. You can't play if you're tired. And if you need help, go to the manager. Don't wait for him to come to you."

That was it. Yogi had finished his heart-to-heart talk with his son.

Listening, Carmen Berra began to cry. "How come you didn't cry when I went away?" kidded another son, 23-year-old Timmy, getting ready himself to go to camp with the Baltimore Colts.

A third Berra boy, Larry, 25, played two years in the Mets' organization and then was forced to quit because of knee surgery.

Yogi Berra has some firm ideas about parents interfering with their children. He doesn't believe in it. He never tried to persuade any of his three sons to pursue a professional career in sports, yet he's pleased all did. Especially Dale.

"I only saw him play two games in high school, and I didn't even let him know I was there," said Yogi later at his desk in the Mets' office. "He hit a home run in one of the games."

"When he found out you'd seen him, did he ask you how he looked?" a newsman asked Yogi.

"Don't they all?" he laughed. "He's all right, a good boy. One thing about him, he doesn't have a steady girl friend yet. That's good."

The Pittsburgh Pirates made Dale Berra their first draft pick, paying him somewhere around $45,000 to sign with them. Howie Haak, the Pirates' head scout who has discovered so many of their stars, and Gene Baker, another of their scouts, both call Berra "the best high school player in the country." He is bigger than his father, standing six feet even and weighing 175. A right-handed hitter, he plays third base and runs well enough so that there were some questions why the Mets hadn't drafted him instead of the Pirates.

"We liked him very much and Yogi understood we did, but when it came our turn, we had to go for the player our scouts felt had the most ability," explains Mets' general manager Joe McDonald. "That player was Butch Benton, a catcher from Tallahassee, Florida. We had Dale in our top 24. We didn't have Nolan Ryan that high. Ryan was picked 29th in the draft. That means 289 players in the country were considered better than he was. Sometimes you're right; sometimes you're wrong. The percentage of draftees who make it to the big leagues is less than 50 per cent."

Yogi Berra recalls he had two hits in his first professional contest with Norfolk of the Piedmont League, but that he personally lost the ball game. Unaccustomed to catching under the lights because he had always played the outfield, he let a pop-up fall between him and the pitcher in the ninth inning and two runs scored.

The Mets' manager was anxious to know how his boy did in his first game Saturday night, playing in Niagara Falls' season opener against Batavia, but he resisted the impulse to call. Again, he didn't want to seem like a mother hen.

For Yogi's information, his son had two singles in four trips. He also made a diving stop of an eighth inning smash at third base, jumped right back on his feet and threw the runner out in perfect Brooks Robinson style. Niagara Falls won the ball game, 4-0, and beat Batavia Sunday night also, 3-1. Dale Berra was one-for-three in that one. He handled eight chances in the field, one of which was on the spectacular side, but let a ball go through his legs for an error. Oh, well, nobody's perfect.

Hal White, the former Detroit pitcher who manages Batavia, is among those impressed by Yogi's son.

"He's going to be a fine ballplayer," he says. "He's got good instincts."

White has one other comment.

"He's also better looking than his Dad," he laughs.

Perfect Game For Brick Haslam

KINGSTON

The impossible happened in the City Slo Pitch Swing Division Monday night at Block Park — Brick Haslam of Jeff's Place pitched a perfect game. Haslam only had to face 12 batters to get it as his squad pounded Lester Felton of Jones' TV for 13 runs in three innings. Larry Allen, Butch Wells and Roger Steltz led the offense which stopped the game after three and a half frames. Haslam even managed to record two strikeouts.

Kuriger Top Female Athlete

STONE RIDGE
Sharon Kuriger, who excelled in volleyball, tennis, and softball, has been named Outstanding Female Athlete at Ulster County Community College for the 1974-75 academic year.

A Kingston High School graduate, Ms. Kuriger served as co-captain of the women's volleyball and tennis squads. She also was selected as most valuable member of the volleyball squad.

Barbara Miles, an Onteora High graduate, was named the Scholar-Athlete. She posted a 3.90 average for four semesters at UCCC and had a perfect 4.0 (straight-A) average for three of those semesters. Ms. Miles was co-captain of the volleyball team and also played on the softball squad.

Holly Hepner, also an Onteora graduate, was named most valuable player of the women's softball team. Janet Dunn, a KHS grad, was picked as MVP of the women's tennis team, on which she was co-captain.

It had been previously announced that soccer player Tom Mulroy had been chosen as Outstanding Male Athlete at Ulster.

MVP prizes went to Kyle King (golf), Franklin Hill (soccer), Carl Mabry (basketball), Ron Cicio (tennis), Matt Brand (wrestling), Bob Marz (baseball), and Charlie Mazzola (skiing).

Lions Beat Fann's In Rondout BR; Vols, Chidsey Kingston Winners

KINGSTON
Bob Smith pitched out of a bases loaded jam in the fifth inning, and the Rondout Valley Lions Club went on to post a 4-3 victory over Fann's in the Rondout Valley Babe Ruth League.

In Kingston Babe Ruth action, the Vols bombed Kiwanis, 17-1, and Chidsey DeForest beat Quilty Insurance, 7-1.

Smith and loser Rich Myers each threw a five-hitter, but the Lions scored two in the first and two more in the fourth inning despite Myers' 11 strikeouts. Ed Shaver made a tough catch in the outfield to help the Lions.

Dan Langton homered and doubled as the Vols romped with only six hits off Steve Herzog. Jay Bentley cracked a two-run single in the first to start Chidsey on the road to victory.

The scores:

Rotary Wins, 4-3

KINGSTON
Mark Chapman's eighth inning RBI lifted the Rotary to a 4-3 victory over Jordan's in the Senior Babe Ruth League.

The winners had taken in three-run lead in the third inning when Warren Cagnone followed Kevin Jordan's RBI single with a two-run homer. Al Johnson and Pat Howard rallied Jordan's back into a tie in the fifth.

Cagnone started on the mound and gave way to Jordan who picked up the victory. Johnson went all the way for the losers, fanning nine and allowing five hits.

United Citizens Address The Issues

SAUGERTIES has a list of issues it will address. The United Citizens of Saugerties, a newly re-organized citizen group formerly known as the Concerned Citizens of Saugerties,

Among the problems on the organization's agenda for "discussion and constructive action," according to secretary

Louise Johnson, are: the nuclear reactor at Cementon; the Saugerties village budget; the Saugerties village water supply system; enforcement of village ordinances; the Saugerties village plumbing code and proposed amendments; merger of village and town facilities; town planning and zoning.

Election at the June 11 meeting at Eddie's Delicatessen as trustees were Joan Feldmann, Pat Thompson and Bill Brown.

Membership is open to any resident of the village or town 18 years or older. Open meetings will be held the second Wednesday of each month at 8 p.m., with everyone welcome. Further information may be obtained by writing The United Citizens of Saugerties, P.O. Box 326, Saugerties, N.Y. 12477.

Commission Head Named

William E. Caton of Chichester, Shandaken town historian, has been appointed chairman of the Town of Shandaken Bicentennial Commission. Caton, an active member of the Father Ginot Council of the Knights of Columbus, has announced that the commission's first meeting will be held Thursday at the Shandaken Town Hall starting at 8 p.m.

Paltz Melee

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz Police, responding to a complaint Tuesday that a man was beating a woman on Main Street, found the man did not want to be arrested and the woman didn't want him arrested.

When the dust cleared, three officers were injured—one with a broken hand—and the man and woman were both under arrest.

Police said that when they arrived at the scene, Christopher Howley, 20, of Pleasant Valley, refused to comply with the officers and an attempt to subdue him followed. As police were attempting to arrest Howley, the woman, Cynthia Charron, 22, of Modena, came to Howley's aid, police said.

Howley was charged with two counts of second degree assault, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. Miss Charron was charged with resisting arrest and disorderly conduct.

Injured in the melee, according to police, were officers Bill Luedeke (fractured right hand) and Larre Smith (swollen right hand) and Sgt. Elfrain Melendez (leg injury). Howley was jailed in lieu of $1,000 bail. Miss Charron was jailed in lieu of $200 bail.

Memorial

In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Millicent M. Gray, who passed away one year ago today, June 25, 1974. The gates of heaven opened One year ago today. You couldn't say goodbye to us. Perhaps it's just as well. We never could have said Goodbye to one we loved so well. Children and Grandchildren

Memorial

In loving memory of our father, Michael J. Tiano, who passed away June 25, 1967. Your presence is ever near us, Your love remains with us yet. You were the kind of father. Your loved ones would never forget. Sons, James, Peter and Michael Jr.

Memorial

In loving memory of our father, Edward S. Slater, who passed away 21 years ago, June 25, 1954. Many a lonely heartache. Often a selfish tear. But always a beautiful memory Of the one we loved so dear. Daughters, Helen Scully, Mary Hill and Grandchildren

Memorial

In loving memory of my father, Mr. Willis Brower, who passed away 17 years ago June 25, 1958. Loving thoughts true and tender, Just to show I remember. Daughter, MILDRED

Memorial

In loving memory of Leonard Van Dyke who passed away June 25, 1974.

First Corinthians 13 says that Love never ceases. The Van Dyke family, more than anyone else, knew how loving and kind their father was in all his ways. How quick he was to help, how quick he was to praise. Beautiful memories he left behind. Each member of the family has written down one memory that they would like to share with you.

Lanette: "Our father, what a beautiful black man he was!"
Yvonne: "Daddy you left us, but you are still within us."
Joe & Doug: "Dad you have given us a priceless treasure—Love."

Richard: "My father was the only man I ever loved and admired."

Renee: "Our dad was our father, brother, and friend."
Scott & Martin: "We loved everything about our Daddy."
Larry: "Daddy is like love, he had a lot to give."

Jefferey: "Rest on Daddy, Rest on. We loved you daddy but my God loved you best."
All the Children: "Our Dad, he was always there when we needed him. He never neglected us."

Vera: "Darling, even though you have departed, you will always be in my heart! I Love You . . . Your Wife."

Respectfully,

THE FAMILY

Nursing

Homes

Impasse

ALBANY (UPI) — Senate action, expected today on a five-bill package of legislation dealing with the nursing home industry, would formally complete an impasse with the Democrat-controlled assembly on the issue.

A measure requiring nursing homes to file annual financial reports with the state was approved unanimously Tuesday night after a 45-minute debate.

Republican and Democratic lawmakers spent most of that time discussing the respective merits of the Republicans' multi-bill package or the Assembly's single, omnibus bill approach.

Ironically, as it was pointed out by several Republicans, the bill approved Tuesday, plus other measures on the calendar ready for action, were proposed by Democratic Gov. Hugh L. Carey and embodied the recommendations of the Moreland Act Commission created by Carey to probe the nursing home scandal.

Sen. Tarky Lombardi, (R-Syracuse), the Health Committee chairman who sponsored the Carey program bills, answered Democratic criticisms that the bills were not as far-reaching as the assembly's. "The assembly's omnibus bill is Mr. Hevesi's own private bill ... that succeeds the package submitted by Governor Carey."

Assemblyman Alan G. Hevesi, (D-Queens), re-wrote the entire 11-bill package submitted by Carey under a single title.

"The real issue," Sen. Emanuel R. Gold, (D-Queens), said, "is whether as the session comes to an end, we are going to take this issue and handle it or we're going to scuttle the ship."

"The people that I represent don't care if it is one bill or seven, they just want action," Gold said.

With senate action expected on the remaining elements of the package and little likelihood that either house would give in to pass the other chamber's version of the bills, it appeared certain that any action this session on the nursing home issue would have to involve a compromise worked out in the next few days.

Protests

Coal

Order

ALBANY (UPI) — The federal government was unfair, in telling two upstate utilities to switch some of their facilities from oil to coal, according to Alfred E. Kahn, chairman of the Public Service Commission.

Kahn wrote a letter Tuesday to Frank Zarb, federal energy administrator, protesting plans to order conversions to coal at the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. plant in Albany and at two units of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. facility near Newburgh.

"The current formulation is unfair to the customers of utility companies whom you order to switch to coal," Kahn said. "These customers should not be forced to bear a disproportionately large share of the costs."

The Federal Energy Administration has said it intends to order both utilities to change to coal as part of a national plan to reconvert oil-burning generating plants to coal.

Kahn said the conversion would cost Niagara Mohawk about $27 million in additional capital investments during the next two years and Central Hudson about $25.5 million.

Protest Assault

POUGHKEEPSIE

An alleged physical and verbal attack on a reporter last week outside a strike vote meeting of the Dutchess County Chapter of the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA) has brought action from the Mid-Hudson News Association.

In a resolution passed Tuesday night the association condemns the physical assault which allegedly consisted of shoving, and elbowing and demands a public apology from CSEA as well as a promise to attempt to prevent such instance in the future.

It was reported that the reporter, Dick Terlinger of Radio Station WHVW in Hyde Park was asked to leave the CSEA meeting, which he did. Outside in a hall four individuals allegedly "roughed him up for no reason," according to the news association which said that an "attack on one reporter is in essence an attack on all newsmen."

The association said CSEA officials and members refused to identify the four attackers. "Such pointless and irresponsible action does little to enhance the union's image as a body of public-minded civil servants," the association concluded.

 ARIES (March 21-April 19) You should be able to pull things together now and get cooperation that has been unobtainable the past few days.

 TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The aspects are in your corner today. You're especially favored where advancement of your work or career is concerned.

 GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Creativity is your forte today. Choose activities that challenge your imagination when you work with your hands and mind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Follow offbeat leads to find merchandise you want. You're good at rooting-out bargains. You can score!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can effectively direct others today and help them sort out their affairs. They won't realize they're being managed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Little things mean a lot to your career today. Heed small details — you'll see how important it was later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A spin-off from the social whirl will provide you with valuable information. You'll be given news at a luncheon or gathering.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will receive something of value that's quite unusual from a family member or through a family contact today.

Game Force Makes Grand Bid

By Oswald & James Jacoby

On the opposite end of the bidding spectrum from the sign-off is the game force. When a player makes a game-forcing bid, the partnership is committed to keep bidding until game is reached.

North's two-spade response to the opening heart bid was a game force. South's three-heart reply merely revealed that he held a rebiddable heart suit. It said nothing about how good his hand was.

In the language of bids of that particular partnership, North's jump to four spades conveyed the message that his game-forcing bid was based largely on a solid spade suit and not on too many high cards.

It also said: "Partner, if you have a poorish opening bid I am perfectly satisfied to stop at game."

The bid also solved all South's problems for him. He simply bid a Blackwood four notrump. When North showed the two missing spades, South counted to at least 13 top tricks. He bid the slam in notrump because no one could trump any opening lead.

The decision turned out to be a very wise one. East's five hearts would beat a spade grand slam. A heart lead by East would beat a spade grand slam.

Uganda Claims Britain Plans to Invade Her

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Uganda Radio said today two British warships loaded with troops had arrived at a Kenyan port in preparation for an invasion of Uganda over the scheduled execution of a British lecturer.

A British spokesman denied the charge. He said a frigate and fleet auxiliary vessel arrived in the port of Mombasa earlier this month for normal repairs but neither ship had troops or marines aboard.

Uganda President Idi Amin said Tuesday the execution of Dennis Hills would go ahead as scheduled July 4 unless British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan flew to Kampala for talks.

Callaghan said he would not go to Uganda unless Amin granted clemency to the 61-year-old Hills, sentenced to death for calling Amin a "village tyrant" in an unpublished manuscript.

Official Kampala radio quoted a military spokesman as saying "Uganda has now confirmed two British warships full of troops have arrived at Mombasa."

It added, "This confirms what British Lt. Gen. Chandos Blair said in Kampala, that if President Amin did not call off the execution of lecturer Dennis Hills Britain will make use of its troops in Kenya."

Blair, a personal emissary of Queen Elizabeth, held week-end talks with Amin on Hills' fate. After the discussions collapsed, Amin accused Blair of threatening to use British troops stationed in neighboring Kenya to invade Uganda.

The official radio has repeated the charges daily but the British Defense Department has said there were only a few liaison troops in Kenya. Amin's demand that Callaghan come to Uganda and Callaghan's refusal to comply may assure Hills' execution, according to some diplomats.

"Unless someone backs down, there is a deadlock," one diplomat said. "After the events of the last few days I have little doubt Hills will be executed next week unless there is a break."

Diplomats have also expressed concern that the mercurial Amin may try to use some of the 700 Britons remaining in Uganda as political hostages in his confrontation with the country's colonial ruler.

However, in a television interview broadcast in London Tuesday, Amin said he "loved" the Britons in Uganda and added "some of them are my best friends."

In earlier statements on Radio Uganda, the president said any false step by Britain would "place the British community in Uganda in trouble. Britons are being watched already and are regarded as spies."

Amin, a towering former prizefighter, sent Queen Elizabeth a telegram Tuesday saying Hills "will be executed" in 10 days unless Callaghan flies to Uganda to bargain for his life.

"I'm not against the people of Great Britain," Amin said in his five-page telegram to the queen. "That is why I have given Mr. Callaghan another opportunity to come to Uganda before sentence on Mr. Hills is carried out."

Callaghan told Parliament he would not go to Kampala until Hills' life was spared.

"President Amin has only to exercise clemency and he would have the opportunity for a full discussion for which he asked," Callaghan said before flying to Europe.

Amin, who postponed the execution date once, rescheduled it for July 4 after meeting last weekend with two British army officers sent to Kampala to deliver a plea for clemency from Queen Elizabeth.

Mozambique New Nation

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Mozambique became the world's newest nation today, ending five centuries of Portuguese rule with a fanfare of wild cheers, tribal dancing, cowhide drums and a 21-gun salute.

Guerrilla leader Samora Machel was sworn in as the East African nation's first president. He pledged to erase all traces of Portugal's colonial domination and transform Mozambique into the "first truly Marxist state in Africa."

Machel, 42, was greeted by the cheers of 10,000 blacks and whites when he appeared on the balcony of the seaside capital's red brick city hall after taking the oath of office.

A salvo of field guns thundered a salute as Machel, smiling broadly, waved to supporters. In the suburbs, olive-uniformed soldiers celebrated independence by firing their Soviet-made rifles into the air, clapping and shrieking.

Machel, who returned to Lourenco Marques Monday after 13 years in exile, promised to devote himself to reorganizing his country's "catastrophic" economy.

In a nationally broadcast speech he said, "Portuguese imperialism and colonialism robbed us of our riches. International concessionaires made fabulous fortunes while the people starved."

Machel also accused religion "and the Catholic church in particular of contributing strongly towards the oppression of the people."

"Religion is like a blood-sucker," he said.

At a stirring post-midnight ceremony, the bearded Machel pledged to "eliminate the elite."

"Our motto will be: to each according to his work, from each according to his ability," he said.

He drove into Machava soccer stadium at 12:15 a.m. today and stood in the glare of searchlights as his Frelimo guerrillas raised the red, yellow, green and black flag of the new Peoples Republic of Mozambique.

A crowd of 80,000 persons in the stadium began cheering wildly, beating cowhide drums, blowing Kudu antelope horns and dancing as Machel saluted the fluttering colors.

"Recognizing the value of peace, the republic will struggle for the establishment of real peace," he said. "It wants to transform the Indian Ocean into a peace zone."

Machel, who fought his guerrilla war with military hardware from the Soviet Union and China, promised to fight for the emancipation of women and the complete separation of church and state in his infant nation.

Portuguese Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves witnessed the end of 470 years of colonial rule in Mozambique and the birth of what was expected to be the most militant Marxist state in black Africa.

Delegations from some 60 nations attended the independence celebrations, but Machel excluded the United States, France and West Germany from the ceremonies.

Machel's 10-year war of independence ended last spring when the armed forces overthrew Portugal's right-wing regime and agreed to abolish Lisbon's African empire.
